Tradition. At Lehigh, tradition stands at the forefront of everything we do. From our verdant lawns, shadowed by the Victorian gothic rises of Packer Hall, our university center, to the modern concrete abatelements of the Zoellner Arts Center, a modicum of tradition is present in each corner of campus. Freshmen are inducted by their 50-year senior class. The university president greets us. Our parents leave, and we take residence in one of many houses, guarded by a mythical creature known only to Lehigh: the gryphon. Tradition defines our dress, our attitudes and the other platitudes that this book attempts to codify into words and images. For when you leave, all that you retain is the tradition - the grandest souvenir of all.

freshmen move-in - a never ending tradition family weekend - who still pays your bills?

presidential election 2008

The long-awaited day has finally arrived and you experience Freshman Move-In Day. In your head, you have envisioned this actual day over one hundred times. Thoughts and questions run across your mind at what seems to be one hundred miles an hour. You wonder: Did I wear the right outfit? How does my hair look? Will I make new friends? Did I pack my toothbrush? Will I like my roommate? Of course, you know this case of the butterflies is absolutely normal. However, you cannot help but be a tad nervous.

After driving to the Mountaintop campus, you eagerly wait in line to receive directions and instructions. While waiting, a sense of pride comes over you as you realize you have physically arrived at college. Lehigh University is no longer a college on your "potential college list." In fact, it is your new home for the next four years.

While slightly overwhelmed, you notice the chaos happening around you as you wait for your dorm key and your ID card - the true testament to your becoming an official college student. As your attention turns to the dozens of parents and students unloading cars, you also notice upperclassmen carrying belongings and sweeping them off to specified rooms. As you unpack the car, you hike up the endless rows of stairs until you get to the door indicating both your name and that of your roommate.

You slowly turn the doorknob to see a room the size of a closet and wonder how you will ever fit all your belongings in this small space. Several hours later, you have managed to cram your life into approximately 25 square feet of space. Completely exhausted from the excitement and the unpacking, you say goodbye to your family. In a matter of minutes, you will gain ultimate freedom and responsibility for your life. Waving goodbye to your family feels both exciting and intimidating. Whether you want to admit it or not, you know you depend upon your family for many things. This moment is the beginning of becoming a real college student. How could you have known that in just one day you could change so much?

After the car is unpacked and the room is set up, new roommates take some time to get to know one another.

I felt really welcomed and excited to start college because of the help from the upperclassmen. It made move-in day less nerve-racking.

the Dalai Lama visits lehigh

GENERATING A GOOD HEART

In 2008, students, faculty, staff and community members eagerly awaited the scheduled arrival of His Holiness the 14th Dalai Lama. For six days in July, the Dalai Lama taught those who attended his events. In addition, he gave a well-attended Sunday afternoon public lecture. Through everything His Holiness said, he successfully portrayed his message of world peace and the art of "dialogue."

His Holiness speaking to a sold-out crowd, with his translator near by.

Addressing a sold-out crowd in Stabler Arena, His Holiness professed that the 20th century has been a century of war, and the 21st century needs to be a century of dialogue. Building on the subject of his lecture, "Generating a Good Heart," the Dalai Lama challenged people to cultivate love and compassion in their own heart and to embrace non-violence as the only way to ultimately solve problems in the world. The Dalai Lama helped students attending the lecture to understand that it is "our" responsibility to clean up the mess that the previous generations left. He encouraged students to understand that spreading peace and compassion is the way in which the job can be accomplished, and war and violence is not the solution.

As his visit ended, his spirit and teachings remained with those who heard the message. The knowledge shared helped those in attendance gain a greater understanding of universal issues.

A RUSH TO THE POLLS

Election season is a busy and exciting time, but the '08 Presidential election was different. The candidates were not only republican and democrat, but were also of different racial backgrounds.

John McCain, a caucasian man, was the candidate for the Republican Party and Barack Obama, an African American, represented the Democratic Party. Never before had an African American man made it this far in a presidential election, and the idea of change, which Obama claimed he would bring to our country, thrilled many voters. Young voters were unusually energized.

Students travel downtown to vote at the local polls.

While residing on Lehigh's college campus for the election, students made significant efforts to ensure other students were registered to vote and were informed about the candidates, their issues, their beliefs and their plans if elected. Furthermore, to promote the importance of voting, Lehigh welcomed celebrities such as Kate Walsh, an actress from the television shows "Grey's Anatomy" and "Private Practice," and Kal Penn, an actor from the movie "Harold & Kumar Go To White Castle." There was a huge emphasis during the election period to get voters to the polls. Republican candidate, John McCain and his Vice Presidential candidate Sarah Palin, spoke at Stabler Arena. The event reinforced the political excitement on campus. Everyone seemed invigorated and enthusiastic about the 2008 Presidential election.

A Lehigh student calls a friend while waiting in the never-ending line.

Because of the number of voters, students sometimes had to wait in line for over 2 hours.

Election day was the first time I saw so many people on this campus get so excited about politics. It was nice to see everyone come together to encourage the student population to vote, regardless of political parties.

LEHIGH STUDENTS DRESS FOR THE OCCASION

Colorful leaves were abundant on campus and were a reminder of the fall season. As autumn settled in and temperatures dropped, conversations of creatures, costumes and candy began to arise. The spirit of Halloween surrounded the university weeks before the big day. Its arrival was anticipated by many, as students prepared for a weekend of festivities. From community service projects to creating personal costumes, everyone found a way to get involved. One popular event each year is Spooktacular, a day for local Bethlehem children and their families to engage in Halloween activities. This year was the seventh annual Spooktacular, and it was an overall success. Nearly 200 Lehigh students volunteered to give kids a day of crafts, games and food.

The days of trick-or-treating and carving pumpkins have long passed, but students here made the holiday one filled with creative costumes and great memories. Halloween for most students involved putting together multiple costumes, each one for a different night out. During Halloween weekend, typical costumes such as princesses, superheroes, bumblebees and cats could easily be spotted around campus. Many students put together interesting costumes such as Sonic the hedgehog, The Wizard of Oz characters, Greek goddesses and Joe the Plumber. Best of all, however, were the students who showed Lehigh pride dressed as engineers and the T.R.A.C.S. bus. Although the days of knocking on doors and eating candy galore are gone, Lehigh students have succeeded in making Halloween a holiday worth celebrating.

Halloween is such a fun time of year. It is great to see everyone in their costumes.

This fall, Zoellner had a great line up of performances open to students, faculty, staff, and the general community. The performances began with Grammy Award-winning artist Boz Scaggs, who combined jazz, blues and rock for an excellent evening. The Bill Frisell Trio also performed catchy tunes at the Art Center. A big event was the Evening of Broadway and Movie Hits which was an event for charity that lasted all weekend.

Zoellner also had many performances from Lehigh's own musical groups. Student Chamber Ensembles took place at a free admission for students. The LU Choral Arts performed at Packer Chapel for Christmas Vespers. The Philharmonic and Wind Ensembles also held concerts during the Fall Semester.

The theatre department produced a slew of performances for the Fall Semester. "A Doll House" by Henrik Ibsen took place in October and displayed great dramatic acting about a husband and wife's relationship. Even though the plot is set in the 19th century, the issues mentioned still affect us today. The award winning play, "The Clean House" by Sarah Ruhl, was performed in November. The play dealt with issues such as women's economic struggles and breast cancer.

November 7-9 was the annual Family Weekend at Lehigh. Family members of students came to campus for the weekend, and, as always, freshman parents represented the majority. Families were anxious to see their children and learn how they were coping since freshman move-in day. Some popular scenes included touring the campus, attending the address of President Gast in Baker Hall, exploring the new Barnes and Noble café and purchasing Lehigh gear in the bookstore. The ever-popular football game was played against Colgate, and despite the rainy weather, the Lehigh community showed their support for the players. Students took their families to tailgates, and together they enjoyed great food and refreshments. Families were seen throughout Bethlehem accompanying their children to excellent restaurants and to the mall for some shopping. Overall, the weekend was a success and gave everyone a nice glimpse of life at Lehigh. The hardest part was saying goodbye, but at least families now know that their student is doing well.

Guts, glory and teamwork, combined with school spirit and pride, brought the Mountain Hawks to victory in the 144th meeting of the annual Lehigh versus Lafayette football game. After a 31-15 victory, Lehigh students clad in brown and white stormed Fisher Field on November 22 to celebrate the end of their team's four year losing streak.

The football game marked the end of Lehigh-Lafayette spirit week, a highlight of the fall semester that the student body looks forward to every year. Celebrating one of the oldest and most famous rivalries in history, students came together to participate in a series of wacky and entertaining events.

Spirit week began on Monday, with the Lehigh cheerleaders decorating cars in school colors. That night, the men's basketball team defeated Delaware State in a 76-58 victory. Tattoo Tuesday came the following day, where students could receive temporary tattoos at Rathbone or the Lower UC from members of the Hawks Nest.

State Radio performed at Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza on Wednesday night to a cheering crowd. The annual pep rally featured the football players and coaches, dance team, cheerleaders and marching band, as well as hundreds of screaming fans.

Athletic students began Thursday by running in the Turkey Trot, a race that winds its way to the very top of campus and then back down. That night, Bed Races, a student favorite, took place on Library Drive. Teams of five in decorated beds and costumes competed against each other in drag-race style to have their beds be the first to cross the finish line.

Students dressed head-to-toe in brown on Friday for Brown-Out Day. As the final event leading up to the big game, Friday night hosted Lehigh Wrestling versus Michigan in a victorious 20-12 match.

The final football game at Lafayette College brought an end to spirit week, but the thrill of victory can still be felt today. As one of the most historical and favored events of the semester, Lehigh-Lafayette week is a celebrated tradition that brings charm and heart to the Lehigh campus.

THEATRE CREATIONS

The Queen shows concern.

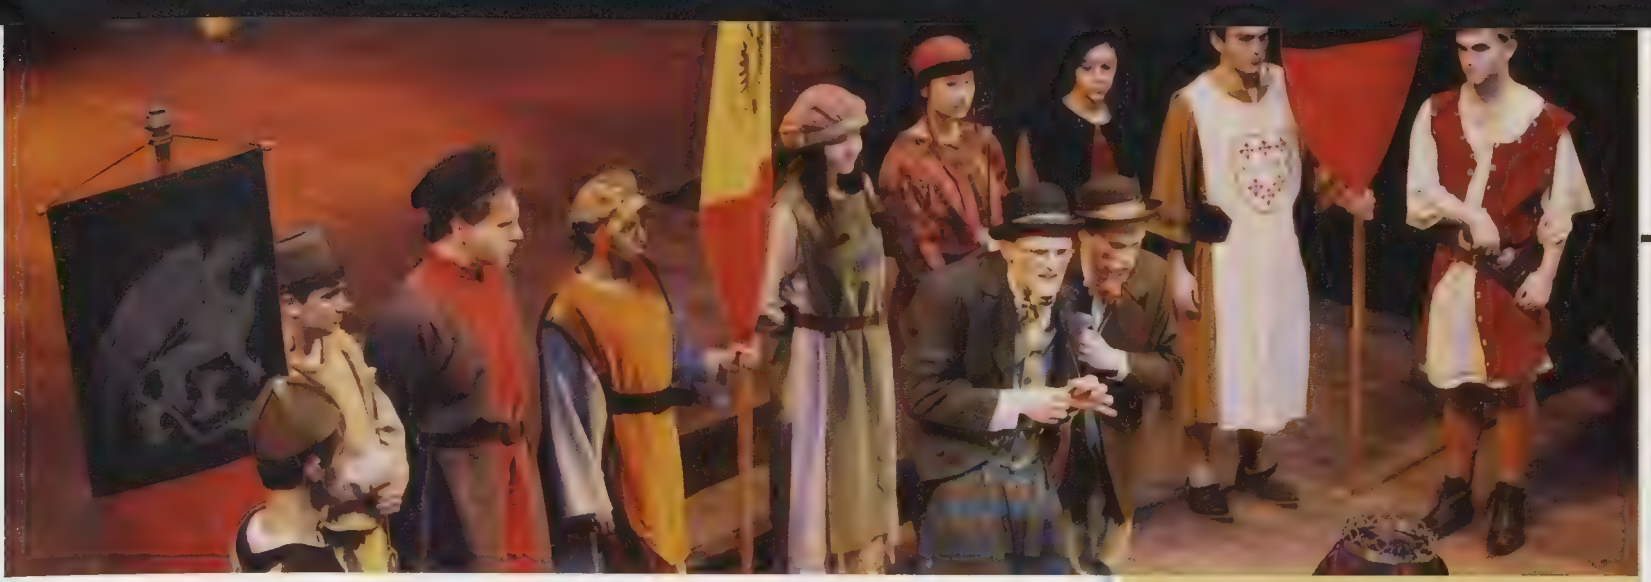

Two cellists hit a high note.

In addition to accommodating many leading performances, The Zoellner Arts Center held events featuring Lehigh's very own talent. Throughout the semester, students, faculty, staff, family and friends joined the excitement and caught a glimpse of what theatre, music and art at Lehigh is all about.

The students in the Theatre Department produced two major performances this spring: "Wintertime" and "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead." Both performances were a huge success. Spring is also a time for the seniors to shine, and they accomplished this through their performances in the Senior Recitals. The LU Philharmonic and the LU Symphonic Band also had great performances.

Lehigh was fortunate to host professional performances. Cirque Eloize, the Dublin Philharmonic, DRUline Live, The Russian National Ballet Theatre and many more all performed on Lehigh's campus. Bringing these professional acts to Lehigh provides everyone opportunities to experience something special. During the spring 2009 semester, The Zoellner Arts Center never skipped a beat and held a vast array of special entertainment.

THE BATTLE OF THE HILL

Greek Week highlighted the spirit and camaraderie between the sororities and fraternities on Lehigh's campus. The week began with the traditional and zany opening ceremonies, where the houses were given the chance to show off their new pledge classes. Participants wore togas and carried banners that depicted creative themes. After the pageantry of opening ceremonies, Greek Week officially began. The events held throughout the week, consisted of bull riding, Sumo wrestling, dodge ball, gladiator and volleyball. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday night, Grace Hall became the theater for hundreds of Greek students, while Theta Chi Sweetheart, Mr. Lehigh and the Dance Competition took place in front of many students.

Though houses put on their "game faces" to be number one, participants simply love participating in this spring spectacle. Marking the end of the semester, Greek Week allows for friendly competition and promotes bonding between sorority sisters and fraternity brothers. Many memories are created during this week, and each year houses try with even more force and determination to be Greek Week champions.

JUST A DAY IN THE SUN

Dancing to the music or lounging in the sun, students covered every inch of Sayre Field.

While the sun was shining, students happily enjoyed Sundaze. The University Productions event took place on Sayre Field. Music lovers dressed in summer clothes, played Frisbee, lounged on the lawn and enjoyed a variety of musical acts. The Lars Danko, a rock band based outside of Bethlehem, PA and Divine Rhyme, a hip hop act from Lehigh University, created a great atmosphere to begin the day's festivities. Their acts were followed by The Thermals, an indie/alternative/post-pop-punk rock band from Portland, OR. All entertainment was incredible; however, the final act of the day, the Grammy award-winning hip-hop band from Philadelphia, PA, The Roots, stole the show. With everyone up on their feet and dancing, one could sense the excitement of the end of the spring semester.

In between concerts, an assortment of games were held for students. Food and cold beverages along with popcorn, French fries, hot dogs and water ice were available to the crowd. This event, which took place on a beautiful Saturday afternoon, is what everyone needed after a long academic year. It was a great way to get everyone together for one last time before the craziness of finals.

Sundaze was the perfect event to close out the year. I was able to enjoy the amazing weather, the awesome music, and hang out with my friends, all at the same time. Nothing can beat that!

Lehigh football finished the 2008 season with a Patriot League record of 4-2, which included a 31-15 victory over archrival Lafayette in Easton. The 4-2 mark placed Lehigh in third place in the league standings; the Mountain Hawks were picked to finish fifth in the preseason poll.

Sophomore John Kennedy sprinted 94 yards for a touchdown that sealed a 31-15 victory for Lehigh over Lafayette in front of the 15,908 fans in attendance at Fisher Stadium. With the win, the Mountain Hawks snapped a four-game losing streak versus their rival and finished the season. Sophomore quarterback J.B. Clark finished the day 12-of-22 through the air for 201 yards and two touchdowns. He was named the game's MVP, becoming the first Lehigh sophomore QB since Hall of Famer Marty Horn '86 in 1983 to earn Most Valuable Player honors.

Lehigh placed nine student-athletes on the 2008 All-Patriot League football teams. The Mountain Hawks had seven selections on the First-Team, including five members of its defense. They led the Patriot League in sacks and ranked second in scoring defense and rushing defense. The seven First-Teamers totaled the second-most points chosen from any team in the Patriot League behind only league champion Colgate's eight total selections. Among the First-Team honorees were offensive lineman Will Rackley, punter Jason Leo, defensive linemen BJ Benning and Brian Jackson, linebackers Tim Diamond and Matt Cohen and safety Quadir Carter.

All I can do is smile and relive the amazing terror that came over me when I saw the entire Lehigh stands rush on the field. Even if I never put on another pair of football pads again, this year will ultimately boil down to disappointments, 1 and 2 point losses (sometimes on the last play), my season-long injuries and beating that team down the road. Every season, the goal remains the same for the Lehigh women's soccer team: to compete for a Patriot League Championship. The Mountain Hawks showed much promise but were plagued by inconsistency in a 6-10-1 campaign. However, there were bright spots which included several early season wins and a 2-0 triumph over eventual league champion Army in the season finale. "Though our overall results were somewhat disappointing, our performance in our final match of the year was very encouraging," said head coach Manny Oudin. The Mountain Hawks put together their most impressive performance of the year, a reason for optimism as the program readies for 2009.

On October 18, Lehigh enjoyed a shining moment with a 2-0 road win at Lafayette, the program's seventh straight triumph over its archrival. As the Mountain Hawks move forward in preparation for 2009, the program prepares to say goodbye to a senior class that made major contributions as freshmen to the record-setting 2005 team. Allie Caldwell, Hailey Coonrad, Julie Kafka, Amy Mastromonaco and Emily Means all made major contributions to the success of Lehigh soccer.

One of the most exciting things for Lehigh is the amount of talent that returns to the program. As many as 23 players could return next year, and with another strong incoming class of freshmen on the way, Lehigh is looking forward to the opportunity to work towards a return to the postseason in 2009.

However, despite not making the Patriot League Tournament, we finished the season on a positive note by beating the number one seed in the league, Army, 2-0 on their home field. This was a great win and really embodies our team in that we continually fight and work hard to get results. These results did not come as often as we would have liked this season; however, it was a great way to finish the 2008 season. Playing soccer at Lehigh does not just involve the wins and losses of games in the fall. There is a lot of hard work and training all throughout the year. My teammates have become some of my best friends, and although we were not always successful on the field, we were able to be there for each other, form close bonds, work together and compete as a unified group."

It wasn't the perfect way to end the 2008 season; the men's soccer team would have preferred ending the year with a championship celebration rather than a loss to Colgate in the final game of the regular season. However, looking back at the year that was, all was not lost in 2008. The Mountain Hawks finished with a 7-7-3 record, assuring a .500 record or better for the 13th-consecutive season.

"There were a lot of ups and downs this year," coach Koski said. "There were some great games and there were some bad games, and a lot of that speaks to our youth. We certainly showed we can play when we want to play." Lehigh's youth was certainly on display for much of the season, with 12 freshmen and just three seniors on the roster for the 2008 season.

There were even more highlights for the Mountain Hawks in 2008, with four players earning spots on the All-Patriot League team. Seniors Adam Gazda and Jim Taranto took home top honors by being selected to the First Team. Gazda led the team with six goals and tied Taranto for the lead with 15 points. Taranto made more of a mark with his distributing skills, finishing second in the league and first on the team with seven assists.

With most of its core returning for 2009 – only two seniors are departing the program – the Mountain Hawks will look to build on the high points from 2008. The one thing they will not do, however, is dwell on the past.

"This year was tough. Going into the season we had high expectations, both on personal levels and as a team. Having not made the Patriot League Tournament in 2007, we were very disappointed, so this year, that was our ultimate goal for 2008. I would equate our season as pretty similar to a roller coaster. We started off well with wins against Ivy League foes in Princeton and nationally ranked UPenn, including a near-win against eventual national champ University of Maryland, but we were unable to translate that success during our Patriot League play. Overall, though, I was pleased to have been a part of the Lehigh men's soccer team for four whole years, and the experience is something that I will hold close to me forever. I'll also look forward to keeping track of my teammates as they continue forward in search of that Patriot League Championship!"

This year Alejandro was captain of the women's team, won the Athlete of the Year Award for the second consecutive year and earned a fifth-place finish at the PL Championships. Her speed helped the team beat rival Lafayette, as well as many other teams throughout the season.

She played an implemental part in unifying the Mountain Hawks at the beginning of the year to show the athletes how important the team is in this collaborative sport.

All runners know about the challenges each has to face on a daily basis. When they go through a tough practice, they all go through it together. The men's cross country squad has relied on its seniors Jon Wetzel, Ben Lampi, Dan DeWitt, Carl Leunig and Leo Smith, with their experience and talent leading the way during the season.

Lehigh hosted the 35th annual Lehigh University Brooks Paul Short Run on the Goodman Campus. The men's team put forth strong showings as they finished 15th out of 45 teams. Senior Jon Wetzel led Lehigh's men with a time of 24:44, which put him in 51st place overall.

The men's team improved on their finishes in the Patriot League Championship from a year ago, finishing in third place on both sides. The Mountain Hawks used three top-20 finishers to move into third place with a score of 77 points. Jon Wetzel (third), Ben Lampi (eighth) and Evans Kosgei (12th) ensured the Mountain Hawks would improve on last season's fifth-place finish.

The men wrapped up the NCAA Mid-Atlantic Qualifiers with a ninth place finish. Senior captain Jon Wetzel scored the top finish of the day for the Lehigh men, crossing the line in 20th place and earning a spot on the All-Region Team.

The men's cross country team celebrated a stellar fall season. "From the minute I began training this past Summer in preparation for the upcoming season alongside a handful of my teammates, I knew that the Fall of '08 would be a bright spot in the history of Lehigh men's cross country. As the intensity in training rose, and the whole team came together during our pre-season camp, we all began to realize that our dreams may very well become a reality in November. The Men's program was ranked fifth by the Patriot League coming into our first meet, and as we consistently rose to the occasion against tough competitors, both in and outside of our conference, our confidence and desire to win grew as a team. Though we did hit a few road bumps along the way, when all was said and done, a third place finish (which was not too far off of Army and Navy, who tied for first) and a subsequent pummeling of Navy two weeks later at the NCAA Mid-Atlantic Regional meet speaks volumes for what was accomplished this season. Not only did we prove ourselves to the Patriot League, but we came together in times of emotional and physical adversity and ran away successful! With a team full of young talent, Lehigh is sure to be a threat in the coming seasons and, of course, next fall!"

 Patriot League Standing: 6th out of 6

The Mountain Hawks went into the 2008 season with a successful 2007 season behind them. The team ended last season second in the Patriot League regular season—one of the most successful runs in team history. This year, the Hawks were picked fifth in preseason Patriot League polls.

Despite high expectations this year, the team fell a bit short, finishing 3-14 and 0-5 in the Patriot League. The Hawks won three of their first six games, but ended the season on an 11-game losing streak.

However, the team saw a number of players earn individual awards. Freshman midfielder Madison Ingal earned a Patriot League Rookie of the Week title. Sophomore goalkeeper Lilia Stefaniwsky was named the Patriot League Goalkeeper of the Week.

Two players also garnered spots on the all-league teams. Junior forward Kelly Fox made the All-League First-Team. Fox leads the team in goals with seven and in points with 16. Sophomore back Taryn Hartzell made the All-League Second-Team. Hartzell led the team in defensive saves with ten.

The Hawks ended the season in a 6-0 loss to undefeated No. 19 American University.

PLAYER PROFILE

KELLY FOX

Junior forward Kelly Fox led the field hockey team's success during the 2008 fall season.

Fox's aggressive offensive skills contributed to her team, leading seven goals and 16 total points. She also led the team in shots on goal, with 30. Fox's high-scoring tendencies have led to a career 15 goals and 12 assists for 42 total points.

Fox's skills on the field throughout the season were rewarded: she was named to the All-Patriot League First-Team. The honor is decided by the League's six coaches.

As a sophomore, Fox also started in all 18 games and led the team with eight assists. She was named to the All-Patriot League Second-Team.

Fox, a finance major, was also one of 10 on the team to make the Patriot League Academic Honor roll with a grade point average of 3.55.

The volleyball team enjoyed a more successful season than its past season. The team finished 8-20 and 3-11 in league play. A 3-0 win against Loyola College in Maryland gave the Mountain Hawks early momentum, followed by a three game winning streak the next week.

The Hawks didn't earn an overall winning record but still created the foundation for future success. The seven freshmen who joined the roster this year are expected to help the team in the future. Freshman Angelika Kopacz earned two consecutive Patriot League Rookie of the Week honors. Kopacz finished first on the team in kills, with 305, and kills per game, with 3.18. Freshman Emma Melendez finished first on the team in digs, with 294, and digs per game, with 3.59.

A 3-2 victory over rival Lafayette College in the middle of the season was a large accomplishment for the team. The Hawks came from behind, after losing the first two sets to the Leopards.

A seven-match losing streak at the season's end was difficult. The Hawks faced off against many highly-ranked Patriot League teams, such as Navy and American University.

McReynolds was named volleyball Athlete of the Year at the team's banquet for her athletic commitment to the team.

On the court, McReynolds was a strong offensive leader. She finished the season second on the team in kills, with 222, and kills per game, with 2.41. McReynolds started in all 92 sets both this season and in her sophomore season.

Over the summer, McReynolds was one of 14 collegiate volleyball players to make the USA Athletes International team. She competed in the Netherlands against various international teams in the DKV Volleyball Tournament.

McReynolds also made an appearance on the television program, "Lehigh Sports Magazine" during the season to talk about her involvement off the court with Lehigh's C.O.A.C.H. program.

With 2009 marking the 100th season of Lehigh wrestling, the team had aspirations of great success. Pat Santoro took over the position of head coach, after nine years as an assistant in the Lehigh wrestling program, and he had many challenges before him. Facing a great deal of pressure after a rough 2007-2008 season, the wrestling team was optimistic about improvement.

Through hard work and dedication, the Mountain Hawks achieved success. Lehigh captured 16th place out of 48 schools at the Las Vegas Invitational and second place at the EIWA Championships. To end the season, seven Lehigh wrestlers competed in the NCAA tournament in St. Louis: freshman Zach Rey, sophomore Alex Caruso, juniors Seth Ciasulli, David Craig, Mike Galante and Matt Fisk, and senior Trevor Chinn.

Although the season ended with no All-American titles, the Mountain Hawks proved to have great talent.

DAVID CRAIG

Junior David Craig had another successful year with the Lehigh wrestling program. After capturing an individual championship at the 105th EIWA Championships, Craig continued to the NCAA Championship where he earned the highest seed on the Lehigh team at No. 8 at 184. As a returning competitor at the NCAA Championship, Craig had a better idea of what to expect in St. Louis. "The first time you go out there it's a little intimidating. It's a big tournament. There's a very powerful atmosphere there, but (as a returning wrestler) you're going to know what to expect when you go out there. You're going to know what the wrestling's like." Craig contributed much to the Mountain Hawks throughout the season and will return as a senior next year.

With a season of broken records, the women's basketball team enjoyed victory on many occasions.

Not only did they capture their second Patriot League Championship, but they also set a program record for most Patriot League wins (12) in a regular season. In their last game of the regular season, the Mountain Hawks defeated Lafayette, 64-56, to earn a spot in the NCAA Tournament.

Traveling to Piscataway, NJ, they faced the Auburn Tigers, ranked sixth in the country. Although the Mountain Hawks were defeated by the Tigers 49-85, they played strong until the end, allowing each member of the team some time on the court. With their first trip to the NCAA Tournament since 1997, the women's basketball team has had a taste of glory. Despite a successful season, the Mountain Hawks won't be resting long. They plan to continue their hard work in hopes of making it back to the NCAA Tournament next year.

ERICA PROSSER

Sophomore point guard Erica Prosser contributed to the women's basketball team in more ways than one this season. Because of her strength on the court, Prosser was recognized as the Patriot League Player of the Year. She averaged 15.9 points per game, leading the league in scoring. However these aren't the only impressive stats on her resume. Prosser placed second in the league in overall scoring and assists and third in steals. In their first NCAA Tournament showing in 12 years, Prosser led the Mountain Hawks by putting 14 points on the board. She also got five rebounds and had three assists.

Her talent doesn't stop when she walks off the court. Prosser understands the importance of her Lehigh education and said, "Coach really emphasizes scholarship throughout the year. We want to achieve in the classroom. We know academics are just as important as athletics. We really take pride in how we perform in the classroom." Her performance on the court and pride in the classroom make Prosser an asset to the women's basketball program.

The men's basketball team finished their season with a 15-14 record including a win over rival Lafayette.

They started their season especially well with the best start since the 1925-26 season, as well as setting a school record for the most non-league victories in a single season.

Along with these team accomplishments, there were many individual accomplishments as well. This included senior Matt Szalachowski who was chosen as a candidate for the 2008-09 Lowe's Senior CLASS Award. Marquis Hall was named the 2009 Patriot League Men's Basketball Scholar-Athlete of the Year and included in 2009 ESPN Magazine Aced All-District First-Team. In addition, Junior Zahir Carrington was named to the 2009 National Association of Basketball Coaches Division I All-District Second-Team. These players helped lead the team to a winning season.

This beat her own school record and helped her solidify the honor of female Athlete of the Year, along with All-League honors. While placing sixth in the 400 free relay, Priscilla Barletta, Allison Montane, Kristen Keenan and Paola Simon broke a ten-year-old Lehigh University record.

The team placed three swimmers in the 1650 freestyle at the Patriot League Championships. Sophomore Lauren Kindrick took ninth place, while junior Allison Rolish placed 10th and freshman Jill Rann placed 15th.

The season ended with not only several broken school records but a winning dual record.

At the league championships, she took seventh place in the one-meter and eighth place in the three-meter diving events, helping her earn the title of Lehigh Female Diver of the Year. Although Tormey enjoyed a successful season, she is quick to share the wealth, crediting her coach with her improvement. She said, "This past season was my best so far. We had a great coach who helped me to improve a lot." With a solid season behind her, Tormey looks to her senior year with excitement. "I hope to make the most of my last year and just have fun. At the Patriot League tournament, the team started off by beating number four, Lafayette, with a score of 1-0. They then went on to beat third placed team Bucknell with a score of 6-2. The Hawks followed this victory with yet another win against rival Lafayette, and from their success at the Patriot League Tournament, they went on to the NCAA Regional Tournament.

The team placed eight student-athletes on the All-Patriot League, which included senior Lisa Sweeney, the seventh four-time First-Team All-League softball player selection in the Patriot League's history.

In addition to the First-Team placements, freshman Julie Fernandez was recognized as the league's Rookie of the Year. Seniors Alisha Gonzales and Lisa Sweeney were named to the ESPN Magazine Academic All-District II First-Team.

The men's baseball team fought together through a number of setbacks during their 2009 season.

Although the season may not have turned out as the team would have wished, the Hawks never gave up.

Their fight included a few highlights, such as winning the first of four games against rival Lafayette. In a particularly tense game against St. Joseph's in March, the Hawks led 12-2 in the second inning before their opponents finally caught up to them. Before the game was called on account of darkness, Lehigh had tied St. Joseph's 19-19, the highest run total in their 2009 season.

Individually, the Hawks were recognized for their tenacity and their strength. Sophomore Andy Russell won a spot on the All-Patriot League First-Team, and Senior Geoff Campbell earned Second-Team accolades. A number of players earned a .1000 batting average for certain games over the course of the season, proving that the number of runs scored isn't always the true measure of a team's success.

PLAYER PROFILE

Geoff Campbell

Senior Geoff Campbell, a member of the men's baseball team since his freshman year, made his mark striving to do the best that he could do for the Hawks. He originally came to Lehigh from Malvern, PA and, when he is not on the field, he is studying psychology and political science.

According to Campbell, his goal throughout the season was, "...always to participate on the team in the role Coach Leary defines, and to do my part to contribute to the success of the team." He shows this through his flexibility on the field, being able to move positions at the drop of a hat. This multi-talented Hawk earned Second-Team honors with a .342 batting average, earning him 14th in batting in the Patriot League for his 2009 season. He managed to earn a .923 fielding percentage when he traded in his bat for a glove. As a pitcher, he led the team in earned run average (1.29).

Campbell has a variety of accomplishments to proudly remember as he leaves the Hawks to pursue a bright future.

Lehigh men's and women's crew teams both enjoyed successful fall and spring seasons. The fall's crucial race was the Head of the Charles in Cambridge, Massachusetts. The men's varsity 8 placed 13th out of 38 boats while the women's varsity 8 placed 9th out of 45 boats.

The men maintained their winning streak throughout the spring season. The season opener against rival Drexel University was a close win, and they beat out the competition at Murphy Cup, winning the petite final. The men's team didn't participate in the Patriot League Championships this year, but dominated other races of the season.

The women's team, however, struggled with some ups and downs this past season. They dropped a home race to rival Lafayette College during the River Cup and placed third in a third-level final at Knecht Cup. However, the women showed their strength at other points, besting three strong crews at the Occoquan Sprints in Virginia and finishing with a fast time of 7:02.1920.

Though the women's team will lose 16 seniors next year, they expect to be just as successful.

EMILY MARSHALL

Senior Emily Marshall has certainly made her mark on Lehigh rowing in her four years. Marshall joined the team as a freshman walk-on with no previous rowing experience and immediately became a competitive presence on the team.

Marshall earned a spot in the women's varsity 8 boat by the spring season. She rowed with the varsity at the Patriot League Championships, then she hopped back into the freshmen 8 to prepare for the season finale: the Dad Vail Regatta. The freshman 8 ultimately placed second in the Dad Vails finals by .09 seconds in a field of 32 boats and earned a silver medal.

Marshall has kept a spot in the varsity boat throughout her rowing career and holds the team 2000 meter erg record with a time of 7:05. She has also become a leader off the water, earning spots on the Patriot League Academic Honor Roll multiple times.

Roar-EE Invitational	7 of 10

The women's golf team began their fall season with several successful tournament showings. In September, the Hawks earned first place by defeating four competing schools at the Kutztown Invitational. In October, the women walked away from the Rutgers Invitational, placing second out of 16 participating schools. At the Lehigh Invitational, the women didn't take top honors, but they did finish fifth of seven participating teams.

The Hawk's spring season began at the Savannah Arts and Design Invite in Savannah, Georgia. Cold temperatures accompanied the first day of play, and the Mountain Hawks finished with a team score of 350. Because the women did not compile a team score for the second day of play, they were not eligible to place.

Overall, the Mountain Hawks had a strong year, even with only one senior on the roster. The majority of the team will be back again next year to continue their efforts on the course.

PLAYER PROFILE

LIVIA AMADO

Junior Livia Amado decided to play golf at Lehigh University so she could participate in excellent athletic, as well as academic, programs. She has successfully excelled at both. Amado placed in every tournament during the fall 2008 season, and despite the challenge her spring season presented, she maintained a positive outlook. "I think I had a really good fall, which made me really happy. Spring wasn't that good, but because of weather conditions, and practice restraints, I can't really complain about it."

Amado managed to balance her successful season with the coursework of an international relations major. She plans to continue improving her game by practicing throughout the summer and hopes to come back stronger than ever as a senior.

The men's golf team were fortunate enough to enjoy the new Lehigh University Golf Complex. This state-of-the-art facility was designed by Lehigh students, and it opened for practice during the summer of 2008.

The Hawks finished their fairly successful fall season on October 25 at the Kelly Gutshall Invitational in Saucon Valley, the only home invitational in the 08-09 season. They finished in seventh place out of eight teams. The Hawks left with a total two-round score of 639. Lehigh met with some difficult competition throughout the weekend, finishing closely behind Bucknell University, who ended their two rounds with a total score of 638.

During the spring season, the golf team performed well, earning the first place position out of 21 teams in the Lafayette Invitational, as well as another first place performance in the Lehigh Valley Cup.

The golf team earned a fair share of success off the course, as well. Seniors Shane Gilroy and Will Robinson, as well as junior Steve Suarez and sophomore Duncan Zeiders, were all on the Patriot League Academic Honor Roll.

Lehigh's women's lacrosse team has consistently had winning seasons in past years. This season was no exception, going 11-6 and placing eight players onto the All-Patriot League Teams.

The team started the season off right with two consecutive wins, beating St. Joseph's University 15-11 and Mount St. Mary's University 11-10 in overtime. The six-game winning streak was a season highlight. Another highlight was an intense, hard-fought 11-7 victory over Navy in a Patriot League match-up.

Personal success on the field was prevalent this year. Sophomore midfielder Lauren Dykstra was named the Patriot League Offensive Player of the Year after being named Patriot League Offensive Player of the Week a record four times. Dykstra led the team with 67 goals this season.

Junior attack Inneke Carmola made the All-Patriot League team for the third consecutive year. Carmola led the team with 25 assists and was second on the team in total points with 53.

Senior defender and co-captain Sarah Fudin has left her mark on the Lehigh women's lacrosse team. Fudin started in 14 games as a freshman and has remained a defensive necessity on the starting lineup.

After two years making All-Patriot League Second-Team, Fudin capped off her senior year by being nominated to the League's First Team.

Fudin finished the season second in caused turnovers, with 21, and scooped up 37 ground balls throughout the season. As an added senior year bonus, Fudin scored her first career goal in a game against La Salle University.

Fudin is a force to be reckoned with off the field, as well. She has been named to the Patriot League Women's Lacrosse Academic Honor Roll.

Lehigh and Lafayette engaged in this season's final rivalry showdown on April 18. In the end, the Leopards outlasted the Mountain Hawks at the Ulrich Sports Complex. With this loss, the 2009 season, along with Lehigh's eight-game winning streak versus Lafayette, came to an end.

The Mountain Hawks placed three players on the 2009 men's lacrosse All-Patriot League Teams. Seniors Ricky Cornetta and Dan Honeywell garnered First-Team accolades, while junior Evan Guerrero earned a spot on the Second-Team.

Ricky Cornetta had a stellar senior season in which he ranked among the nation's leaders in goals with 29 and assists with 25. Cornetta was rewarded for his play with a First-Team selection to the All-Patriot League Teams. In addition, Terry Foy's blog on Inside Lacrosse listed Cornetta as the number-one most under rated player for the 2009 season.

The common goal of the women's tennis team was to make it to the Patriot League Championship match. That quest began in April when the No. 3 seed Mountain Hawks faced archrival and No. 6 seed Lafayette in the opening round of the Patriot League Tournament.

Lehigh advanced to the semifinals of the Patriot League tournament with a convincing 4-0 win over rival Lafayette. Junior Julie Arthofer and freshman Liz Piscitelli picked up wins in both doubles and singles, while junior Stacey Reich delivered the clinching point with a straight set win at No. 5 singles. Lehigh advanced to 6-10 on the season.

The Mountain Hawk's season ended in the Patriot League semifinals for the sixth straight season with a loss to Bucknell. The Mountain Hawks will lose half their team to graduation, but some will return, such as Arthofer, Furman, Piscitelli and sophomore Kiera Murasko-Blank.

Lehigh concluded its season at 8-16.

Sophomore Troy List had been named to the All-Patriot League First-Team. List was the Mountain Hawks top performer on the courts in 2009 as he held the No. 1 singles spot and played on Lehigh's top doubles team, as well as leading the brown and white in both singles and doubles victories. The All-League honor is the second of List's career, as he gained Second-Team recognition following his freshman season.

"The young team worked hard and improved over the past year. With the continued support of head coach Dave Shook and this year's addition of graduate assistant Wouter Hendrix, the team was able to bond together and focus on its goals. A primary goal accomplished and highlight of the season was beating Lafayette in a closely fought match. The team is comprised of great leaders and players, who should be able to get the incoming freshman focused and ready for a promising 2010 spring season. The Patriot League needs to watch out for Lehigh's team, especially over the next couple years as the team should be able to reach its full potential through growing stronger, faster and better."

The women's track team has enjoyed consistent success this year as a team, as well as multiple successes among individual athletes.

The team opened its season at home after a long preseason, earning five individual titles in the Lehigh Season Opener. The following Bucknell Invitational showcased the team's freshman strength. Freshman distance runner Katherine Pierce was the team's only winner, beating out the competition in the 5,000 meters. Two season highlights included beating Lafayette College both times that the teams faced off. The women won the first dual 101 to 80 and won the second 108 to 95.

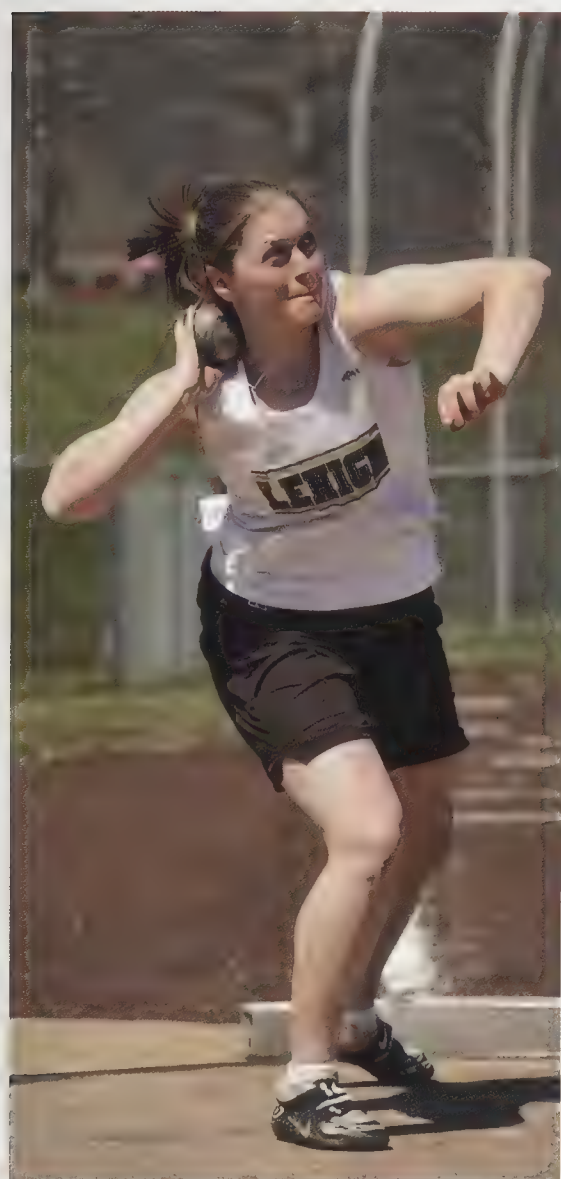

Another season high was the 4x800's Patriot League record during the Patriot League Championships in Annapolis, Maryland. The relay team became the first to finish in less than two minutes. Sophomore sprinter and jumper Latasha Watson secured Patriot League Female Track Athlete of the Week after earning the fastest 400 meter time and third fastest 200 meter time in the Patriot League. Pierce earned Patriot League Rookie of the Week honors.

All in all, the team remained competitive, both as a whole and as individual athletes.

The men's track and field team continually did their best throughout both the winter and spring season. For the winter season, they finished fourth place out of eight at the Patriot League Championships and their spring seasons finished placing fifth out of eight in the Patriot League Championships.

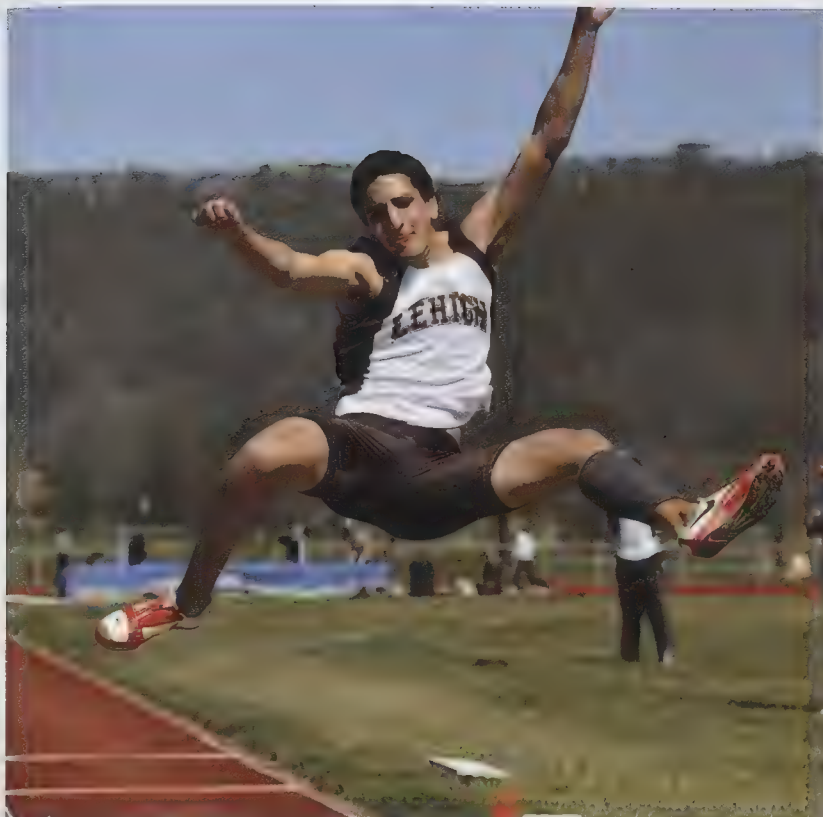

The Mountain Hawks beat their rival, the Lafayette Leopards, in both their winter and spring season. Their winter season consisted of a 101-80 dual meet win against the Leopards with 11 event wins. And their spring season included a 115-80 win against rival Lafayette, winning 13 out of the 19 events.

At the spring Patriot League Championships, Seniors Scott Robinson and E.J. Schuck won League title, for the 400-hurdles and the decathlon, respectively. The entire team worked hard as together they achieved the finish for the brown and white.

Robinson took a League title for the 400-hurdle at the spring Patriot League Championships. He was also named the Athlete of the Meet against Lafayette in the spring, winning four events.

Robinson praises coach Utesch on and off the field: "He cares about his athletes, and wants you to succeed on and off of the track. He has personally helped me overcome obstacles in my life and he would do so for any of his athletes." Professor Eric Salathe

Professor Eric Salathe came to Lehigh after getting his Ph.D. at Brown University. He was hired as part of the team invited to Lehigh to create the Center for the Application of Mathematics. After the Center became the mathematics and engineering departments, he chose to become a professor for the math department. He has since taught classes such as calculus, chemistry, chemical engineering, biology and physics. One extreme case was when he taught general relativity for a semester.

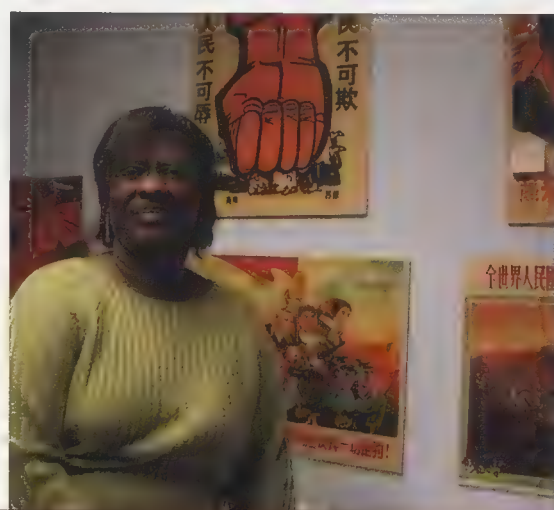

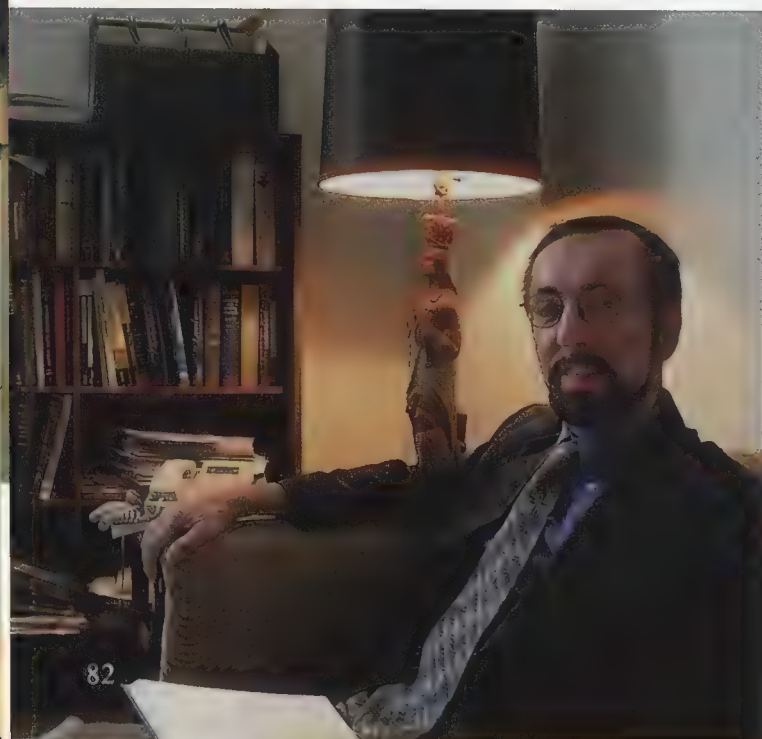

Walking into one of his classes, one would find that laughter is a common feature. Professor Salathe believes in the need to keep an informal atmosphere in both his small classes and large lectures. He finds it keeps focus while also making the experience much more memorable.

Professor Vera Fennell

In a major dominated by older males, Professor Vera Fennell provides some much-needed diversity and a unique teaching style to Lehigh's political science department. She brings to the table unparalleled world experience that shines through in her teaching.

Professor Fennell comes from a large family, and it was her older sister who got her interested in politics, particularly East Asian studies. "I've studied many aspects of East Asian relations in person, such as the rise of the modern state in Asia," Fennell says.

That world experience shows through in the classroom, as Fennell's teaching style involves a unique emphasis on class discussion. "I hope I bring a real enthusiasm to the classroom. Even if people don't find it that interesting, it's relevant to their lives."

PRESIDENT ALICE GAST

Lehigh plans on keeping up with the times in a large-scale project named the STEPS Initiative. Centered in the currently under-construction STEPS building, the project will draw faculty, undergraduate and graduate students together in a multi-disciplinary building and educational atmosphere. The aim of the building is to provide up-to-date laboratories and classrooms. Considering that the last natural sciences building was constructed in 1975, the STEPS building is proof that Lehigh reinforces the importance of the sciences.

The topics of natural science, technology, the environment, politics and society will be studied and discussed in a new atmosphere of cross-departmental cooperation. The building will also feature a four-story atrium. A 75-seat auditorium, 50 research labs, as well as many classrooms, computer labs and meeting rooms will host the students.

The building is a step towards the goal of receiving Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED). While the building costs $61.5 million, the energy savings and efficiency will reduce upkeep and maintenance costs to new levels of self-sufficiency. Construction began on October 16th, 2008 and is expected to be completed in the year 2010. Located on the corner of Packer Avenue and Vine Street, the STEPS Initiative signals a rebirth in Lehigh's commitment to today's environmental problems.

Faculty and students, representing the research that the STEPS initiative will undertake, were invited to speak at the groundbreaking ceremony.

LEHIGH STEPS INTO SCIENCE

bridging the gap

HEALTH, MEDICINE, AND SOCIETY MINOR

The words health, medicine and society are all simple, everyday words, but together they create an interdisciplinary program that is a great asset to the Lehigh community. Headed by English professor Elizabeth Dolan, this new minor fills in some of the gray area between the arts and the sciences in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Launched last fall, the minor is already a huge success. According to Professor Dolan, there were over 20 students who enrolled in the minor the first semester.

The minor's official description says that it "...is intended to serve students who wish to be involved in some aspect of the health care industry or health policy and also students who are interested in communications, the pharmaceutical industry, law, business, agency work and other careers where understanding health care is essential." In essence, it bridges the gap between the strict science of medicine and the humanities.

Professor Dolan says, "The Health, Medicine, and Society field focuses on the social, scientific and humanistic dimensions of health and medical care on individuals, families and societies." The students who are currently in the minor are from a wide range of backgrounds, from pre-med to English.

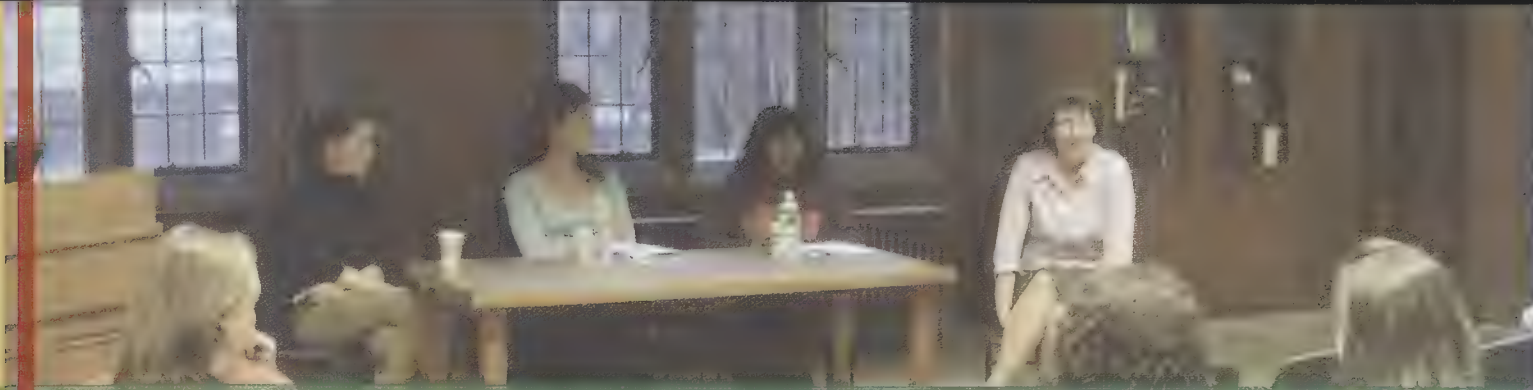

"The Health, Medicine, and Society Minor has really allowed me to branch out at Lehigh and take classes that will allow me to view patients as humans, not just another case study," said junior

There's nothing at Lehigh related to the healthcare field that isn't a natural science, but this minor allows me to see the more sociological aspect of healthcare.

KIM OSBORN

Taha Haque, who plans on becoming a pediatrician or ER doctor. "The classes are definitely challenging to me because I am used to all science, but they are fun and it is a good experience."

The minor consists of four classes from a variety of subjects. Students must take the required Medicine and Society course, but then they can take any three of the more than 10 courses offered from several departments. Courses range from psychology to English to journalism to religion, and more courses are being added every semester as the minor grows.

According to Junior Amanda Howland, "My two favorite classes that I've taken at Lehigh have been in the HMS minor. My favorite right now is a Meditation and Mindfulness class. We get to meditate in class. It's very relaxing."

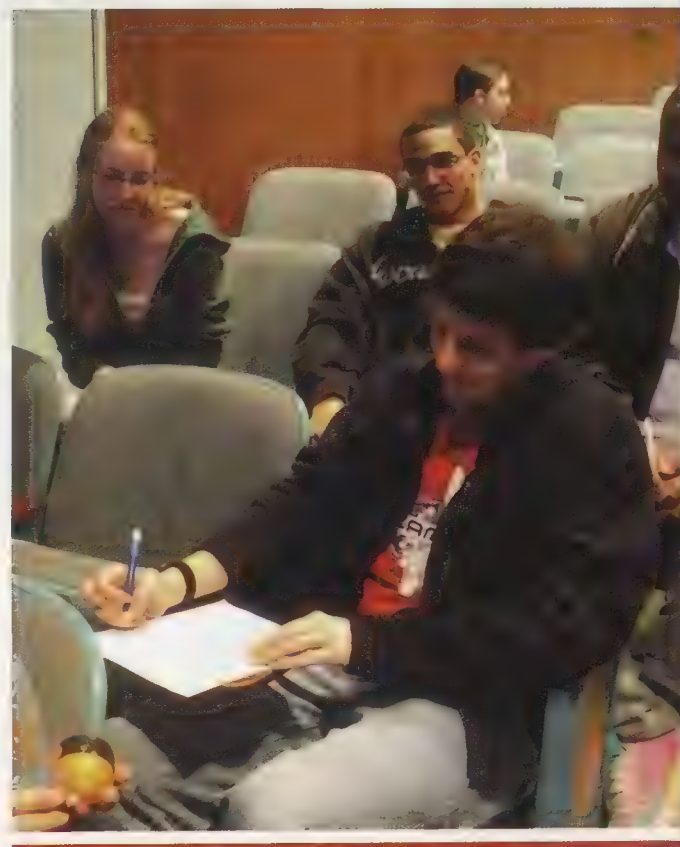

For sophomore Kim Osborn, the HMS minor filled a much-needed gap in her education. "There's nothing at Lehigh related to the healthcare field that isn't a natural science, but this minor allows me to see the more sociological aspect of healthcare. In addition, it has allowed me to see that I want to work closely with patients with concern to their mental health, not just physical health."

EXPANDING IN THE FUTURE

In addition to these great classes, the minor also participates actively in educating the entire Lehigh community. It co-sponsors a variety of events on campus each semester, including a film series of modern health movies and panel discussions on relevant issues.

The idea for the HMS minor started a couple of years ago and was fueled by President Gast's Healthcare Initiative, which allowed for someone to be hired to oversee the minor.

"We hope to become a major in a few more years when we get more funding and popularity," said Dolan. "This is a growing field, and I only see it getting bigger in the future."

The minor offers a variety of classes, including Women in Health, Health Economics and Bioethics.

Professor Svetlana Tatic-Lucic

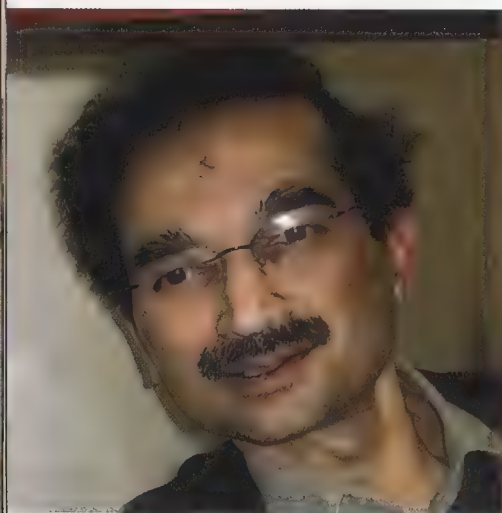

Professor Svetlana Tatic-Lucic is in her seventh year with Lehigh's electrical engineering department and bioengineering program. However, she did not always aspire to be a professor. Having a broad range of interests and abilities, Professor Tatic-Lucic sought career guidance and was told the type of science she finds herself involved with now would be one of her least compatible areas.

Far from discouraged, she found the most enticing aspect of this area was the challenge it presented. With a master's degree and a doctorate, she worked in small and large companies and government institutions before turning to academia. Lehigh grabbed her attention with its old buildings and beautiful Linderman Library.

At Lehigh, Professor Tatic-Lucic works to apply microelectromechanical systems to medicine and biology. Put more simply, she uses very small mechanical systems in cell biology and neuroscience. She teaches courses in Introduction to Microfabrication and Nanofabrication, Introduction to Bioengineering I and II, and Bioelectronics/Biophotonics.

Professor Tatic-Lucic has no regrets about entering this field and hopes to serve as a role model for women in engineering.

Professor Himanshu Jain

In the past, glass was used in a myriad of ways: windows, fiber-optic cables, insulation and even art. Now, in an exciting new way, glass is making a renewed showing in the field of bioscience.

Professor Himanshu Jain, of the materials science & engineering department, is leading an international team of researchers in cutting-edge research to use glass as a medium to heal damaged and diseased bones. Jain holds the position as the Director and Diamond Chair Professor of The International Materials Institute for New Functionality in Glass, IMI-NFG. The multi-national effort, consisting of researchers from four different countries, is centrally located at Lehigh University.

While the use of biocompatible glass has been around for decades, Jain and his researchers are developing a new technique. "Our research is aimed at helping the body grow its own bone. The material is not meant to replace the bone, but to provide a scaffold on which bone tissue can grow," said Jain. "The glass then will dissolve into the bone tissue and be excreted by the body."

CHEM-E-CAR COMPETITION

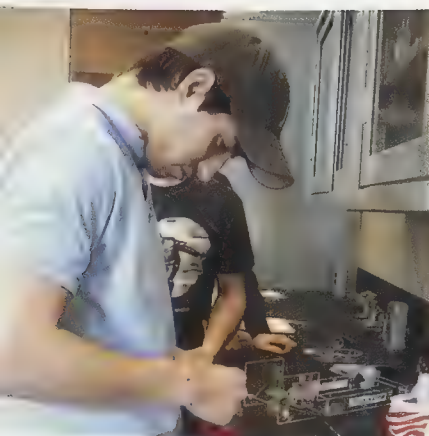

Lehigh's Chem-E-Car team chose to fuel their car with hydrogen.

Competition was in the air at the Unit Operations Lab as chemical engineering students designed hydrogen-powered cars to compete in the Chem-E-Car competition at the American Institute of Chemical Engineers meeting. During Spring 2008, Lehigh organized two teams to send to the regional competition in New York City in the hope of qualifying for Nationals. The rules of the competition were simple: design a car approximately the size of a shoe box that is able to travel a certain distance. The cars must run until their fuel is consumed. Until the day of the competition, the teams did not know the distance the car must travel, or the amount of weight that must be carried for success in the competition.

Lehigh's teams used hydrogen fuel for their cars. Team member Deniz Pamukcu, '11 stated "We discussed the possibilities with our advisor, Dr. Silebi, and he suggested hydrogen fuel." Reaching their goal to qualify for Nationals, the hard work of the team was rewarded when the freshman team finished sixth and the senior team finished fifth. Held in Philadelphia mid-November 2008, the freshman team represented Lehigh at the national competition. They finished 28th out of 40 teams.

Deniz stated "The competition was fun and definitely made you think outside the box. We started preparing for the 2009 regionals, and now that we've competed and know what to expect, I think we'll do better."

one can at a time

Spearheaded by Rossin Junior Fellows, on March 13th Lehigh University and Broughal Middle School students participated in the first annual Canstruction event. The Rossin Junior Fellows are a select group of engineering majors who mentor first-year engineering students, serve as ambassadors to prospective students and participate in local outreach programs.

Canstruction, founded by the Society for Design Administration in association with the American Institute of Architects, is a design and build competition held in cities throughout the United States and Canada. Lehigh University's College of Engineering and the Rossin Junior Fellows are the exclusive sponsors of Canstruction in the Lehigh Valley. The competition entails designing and building structures made entirely from canned foods. After being displayed to the public, the structures are then dismantled and the food items are donated to local food banks.

WE CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Lehigh's event included a replica of the Eiffel Tower, SpongeBob Squarepants, Dino the Flintstone dinosaur and a banana split. Although it only took the four groups of six Rossin Junior Fellows, and an equal number of Broughal students, four hours to build the structures, the event required months of planning.

A Broughal Middle School student assists his team by taping together some cans for his SpongeBob Squarepants structure.

The project came into existence because Dean Gerard Lennon, the Associate Dean of the College of Engineering and the faculty advisor of the Rossin Junior Fellows, approached the group about becoming the Canstruction sponsor in the Lehigh Valley. The Rossin Junior Fellows enthusiastically took on the challenge and approached Broughal Middle School to collaborate on the event. Groups of Lehigh and Broughal students decided on the structures they wanted to build. The Lehigh students then created a model of the structure using a Computer Aided Design (CAD) program. The students scouted the local grocery stores for ideas regarding canned foods that could be implemented in the design. The cans used in the structures were donated by several organizations, including Lehigh University and Aharts, a local food store. The final structures were judged by professional civil engineers and awards were presented to the teams at a ceremony.

This successful event brought media attention to Lehigh and provided food for the needy. From the planning stages to the actual construction, both the Rossin Junior Fellows and Broughal students greatly enjoyed participating in the event. Ana Alexandrescu stated, "The most exciting part was definitely the construction; it was rewarding to see all our work and planning paid off. I can't wait until next year. I have already started thinking about all these crazy ideas about what to build!"

Professor Kenneth Sinclair

After 37 years teaching at Lehigh, Professor Kenneth Sinclair has developed a distinctive and challenging teaching style.

A former accounting department chair, Sinclair is a strong supporter of the Socratic Method as a way to teach his students. The Socratic Method, named after the Greek philosopher Socrates, involves the use of constant questioning to have the students derive the answers to questions themselves. Rather than provide answers, Sinclair's teaching style forces his students to truly understand the material to succeed in class.

"My teaching style involves total engagement," said Sinclair. "My students must have a fundamental understanding of the material before they come into the class. My job is to help them fine-tune through critical thinking and active involvement."

To maintain an understanding of the material in Sinclair's class, students are required to do lots of work outside of the classroom.

"It is definitely a tough class but [Sinclair] teaches very well," said Alex Casey, '10. "He really makes you know the material. He knows the book front to back so you don't have the option to make up anything."

Professor Jill Brown

Lehigh runs in the blood of Professor Jill Brown of the management department. Professor Brown and her husband are alumni of the class of '83, and her great uncle, father and cousin are also Lehigh alumni. She said Lehigh gave her great uncle a chance to get out of the coal mines. "I will forever be indebted to Lehigh," she said.

Professor Brown began with a Lehigh degree in economics and worked for banks such as Mellon Bank. She then changed interests and earned her doctorate in strategic management from the University of Georgia. She spent eight years as an instructor in Georgia before returning to Lehigh. Not only did Lehigh offer extraordinary students and a balance between research and teaching, but it allowed her to teach alongside those who had first taught her and whom she aspired to be like, such as Professor Richard Aronson.

Currently, Professor Brown looks at which types of corporate boards result in optimal financial and social performance. Students in the College of Business & Economics will most likely encounter Professor Brown when taking the last of their required core courses, Business Management Policies.

ALUMNI DISCUSS FINANCIAL CRISIS

fiestas and finances

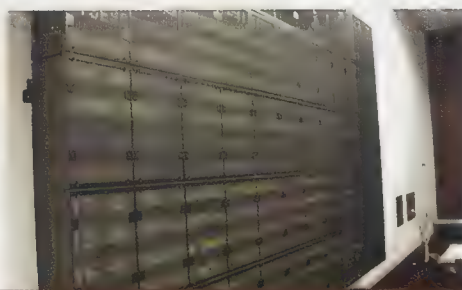

The economic crisis has prompted many questions among students looking to enter the workforce. In response, the College of Business and Economics has hosted several speakers. Professor Wight Martindale gave several public talks on topics such as hedge funds, Citigroup, Lehman Brothers and a comparison between the steel and auto industries. Various alumni also spoke to students, including Joseph R. Perella, a leader on Wall Street from the class of 1964.

Perella looked to the causes of the crisis and noted changes in technology, business and culture. He explained how our policies couldn't keep up with our balance sheet. Perella said the peer pressure to keep quiet about these problems was like that at a frat party: "When the music's blatin' and they're selling tequila, no one wants to say, 'Hey, turn the music off.'"

Perella also said there was not sufficient incentive for self-regulation. If a pilot makes a mistake he runs the risk of dying in the crash, but the leaders of the financial sector don't always face great consequences. Also, many had never experienced such a problem and did not know the right solution. Even now, said Perella, many experts have opinions but none know the appropriate way out. "If they did, we wouldn't be appearing to be like a drunk driver veering from one side of the road to the other in trying to solve it." In a time where confidence may be lacking, Perella advised students to

Regardless of major, Ire@l - Integrated Real Estate At Lehigh, an innovative, three-four year program in real estate, is open to all students at Lehigh. Students completing the program will earn a minor in real estate. The program debuted in 2006 and over 20 seniors graduated with the real estate minor this spring.

The ire@l program is a unique and innovative way to teach real estate at the university level. Conceived by Professor Steve Thode, Director of the Murray H. Goodman Center for Real Estate Studies, his concept began with the understanding that most successful real estate professionals didn't major in real estate. The ire@l program teaches students the ins-and-outs of the real estate business.

The program combines text book learning with real world experience. As Professor Thode describes it, "The ire@l program at Lehigh is different than any other undergraduate real estate program in the country." From the introductory course through the capstone course, the Real Estate Practicum, students are engaged in the hands on study of real estate and learn from key industry leaders. Accomplished real estate professionals are frequent speakers in all classes. Students work closely with local and national developers on projects including the new Sands BethWorks casino and The New York Times building in Manhattan. Real estate professionals are heavily involved with the program and help students complete projects.

Graduates and upcoming seniors benefit from the alumni and professional network established by ire@l. The program provides excellent opportunities to make professional contacts and also includes various events and activities outside of class. There are frequent trips to local development sites, as well as a series of speakers. The class work is based on actual development projects happening locally.

Many Lehigh alumni, successful in real estate, serve on the Executive Board of the ire@l program. Graduating ire@l students benefit from interactions with such esteemed alumni as Webster Collins '57, Murray Goodman '48, and Tara Stacom '80.

The Interfraternity Council faced some changes in recruitment this year. Following a ban on fraternities holding open houses during the fall semester, chapters had to develop new ways to recruit members. The IFC, which coordinates the rush process and assists fraternities in their efforts to recruit new members, was vital in helping chapters adjust to the new rules.

In early October, they hosted a barbeque on the UC front lawn, which allowed freshmen to meet and get a feel for the Greek chapters. Other positive changes were made this year as well. For the first time, all-fraternity GPAs were higher than all-campus male GPAs. The IFC is preparing for even more changes in the near future as Greek life prepares to expand off the Hill to include two non-residential social fraternities.

Alpha Tau Omega was the first fraternity founded after the Civil War in 1865, striving to heal the wounds created by the devastating war and to help reunite the North and South. The brothers of ATO Alpha Rho make lifelong memories and friends. They participate in intramural sports and hold weekend tailgates, while still focusing on their studies. The chapter participates in many community service efforts, including volunteering at the Salvation Army in Allentown to help less fortunate families. They even let fellow students throw whipped cream pies at them during a fundraiser this year for the Make-A-Wish foundation. All four years in ATO at Lehigh proved to be an invaluable experience that you couldn't find anywhere else.

Chi Phi is the oldest fraternity at Lehigh, and thus has many traditions that have been passed on through the years. One of these traditions is Chi Phi's annual Bounce for Breast Cancer fundraiser held with Pi Beta Phi during the fall semester. The two houses come together to raise money for breast cancer research while encouraging a little bit of fun in the center of campus. The men of Chi Phi also have a very strong connection with alumni, with older members returning throughout the year for house dinners and rush events. Current Chi Phi brothers took part in many brotherhood activities this year, including a paintball trip and a high ropes course. Chi Phi once again achieved Gold status in accreditation and has one of the highest GPAs among all fraternities.

The Nu Chapter of Delta Phi is the oldest continuous national social fraternity in the country. At Lehigh, DPhi is known for its dance parties and annual Mardi Gras celebration during Greek Week. The brothers are very competitive when it comes to sports. They were even crowned this year's intramural flag football champions. They are proud to host the annual Breast Cancer Walk, as well as a barbecue this year, with Alpha Phi, to help raise awareness. The chapter holds weekly conference calls with their alumni to discuss scholarships and chapter academic planning. Members are actively involved with all three of Lehigh's major colleges, as well as various clubs and sports. DPhi has many campus leaders, and its brothers will continue to care for the Lehigh community.

They continually strive to uphold their four founding principles: advancement of justice, development of character, diffusion of liberal culture and promotion of friendship. The brothers hold a banquet in the fall for their active alumni. The fraternity is especially proud that they harbor no illusions regarding their responsibilities on campus and that the positive interactions they have with the community are genuine. DU brothers are active volunteers with the local Boys and Girls Club. For the brothers, DU is more than a fraternity; it is a family and a brotherhood.

Kappa Alpha, America's first college fraternity, was established at Lehigh in 1894. KA keeps an active social calendar with events such as beach, band and cocktail parties. They also host an annual volleyball tournament in their own backyard during Greek Week. Many members of KA are involved in various prestigious student organizations around campus, including the Accounting Club, IBE Council, Martindale Scholars and Order of Omega.

The chapter also participates in many service projects, including Adopt-a-Highway, Ronald McDonald House, Habitat for Humanity and the Allentown Boys and Girls Club. In addition to all of their activities and campus involvement, academics is a very high priority for members, many of whom intend to graduate with double or triple majors in a variety of fields.

They participate in everything from intramural sports to varsity sports, including club rugby, varsity golf and varsity tennis. Aside from sports, members of Kappa Sig are involved in many organizations and host events, such as the Kappa Sigma and Chi Phi Holiday Hope Chest, which is an annual charity for the Lehigh Valley Children's Hospital. Each year they present gifts to patients who have to spend the holiday season in the pediatric hospital. Because of the close bonds they've created, Kappa Sigma's alumni have been extremely involved in house activities, and they visit for special events during Lehigh/Laf weekend. There is an unmistakable connection between the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha. According to one member of the house, "The bond of Lambda Chi Alpha has no rifts between graduating classes. For this reason, the alumni, young and old, stay connected and close to all the actives." These men clearly value the friendship that exists among them and strengthen that bond through events such as brotherhood dinners, house meetings and Associate Member activities. The brothers of Lambda pride themselves on their recruitment efforts and the diversity of their members. This is what the men of Phi Gamma Delta continue to attest to year in and year out. As the second oldest house on the Hill, it is the lifelong bond between the men of Phi Gamma Delta that keeps this chapter active and energized. This year, Fiji hosted several events to promote their brotherhood. They held their annual Pig Dinner at Bethlehem Comfort Suites. This event was started in 1893 to rekindle lifelong friendships, raise money for their philanthropies and reinforce the closeness of their brotherhood. Along with this event, Fiji hosted the Fiji Golf Classic. They also held a rivalry run and a very successful blood drive. Moreover, the Fiji brothers did all they could to support Pay it Forward, their annual fund. The fund helps to ensure that Fiji continues to make a positive impact on the lives of young men at Lehigh now and in the future. When not playing host to events, the men of Fiji enjoyed some fun bonding in other ways. Class of 2009

As the biggest and brightest class that Lehigh has ever seen, the Class of 2009 is ready to move out into the "real world," though it is sad to leave the place we've called home for the last four years. The main objective of the officers, in addition to building class unity, was the establishment of the Class of 2009 Endowed Scholarship that will ensure a Lehigh education for future members of the Lehigh family.

Always known for their innovative social programming, the Class of 2009 held many successful senior night events at local establishments, including the Hoedown at the Ho and musical showcases featuring very talented senior acts. Also new this year were the '09 Wine and Cheese Party and Senior Unity Night at the Allentown Brew Works with seniors from all the area's colleges. In addition, the Class of 2009 helped to create Lehigh-laf-a-palooza and continued senior traditions such as the formal at the ABW and Senior Week in Ocean City, Maryland.

Seniors enjoyed a night of hip hop music which featured several Lehigh student performances.

The Class of 2010 officers, President Jack Meehan, Vice President Shannon Patrick, Secretary Nina Patrick and Treasurer Divya Nayar, worked to unite the class through planning spirit, unity and community service events. Such events included: a university-wide volleyball tournament, a three-on-three basketball tournament, Lehigh's Got Talent (an American-Idol-style talent contest showcasing Lehigh's students), and a charity event at Lehigh Grand Prix with proceeds going to the Election for Cancer Research.

In the fall, the class officers hosted the second annual Bed Races, co-sponsored with IFC and RHA. Open to the Lehigh community, the event was incredibly popular with over 300 spectators, and 28 teams. Dressed in wild outfits, from superheroes to Jamaican bobsledders, Bed Race contestants displayed their school spirit in preparation for the Lehigh-Lafayette football game, and a portion of the proceeds benefited the Boys and Girls Club of South Bethlehem. The Class of 2010 hopes the event will grow in popularity and success in the years to come.

Class of 2011

The goals of the Class of 2011 and Team '11 were to bring class unity, encourage school spirit, and partake in community service events. During the Lehigh -Lafayette week, they were successful in bringing back the past tradition of the house decorating contest. Furthermore, during the fall semester, they were very proactive in the 2008 presidential election. They also held Meet & Greets with their adopting class of 1961 and they sponsored a grade-wide t-shirt decorating contest. During spring semester, they held frequent discounted student nights at Rave motion picture theatre at the Promenade. They also sponsored a trip to New York City and initiated an "Eco Can-paign" to increase recycling on campus. The 2008-2009 school year was very productive for the Class of 2011.

Association of Student Alumni

The Association of Student Alumni (ASA) was founded by a diverse group of eleven highly motivated and enthusiastic students in 2002. Our mission: to create and enhance traditions that promote alumni involvement through unity, spirit and community outreach. One of their most important goals is to unify the Lehigh family - past, present and future.

To achieve these goals, ASAs worked to instill a sense of Lehigh pride through programs and events. They are the face of Lehigh as tour guides for the campus and they also plan campus-wide events that bring students together. As an organization, they are dedicated to fostering the relationship between students and their alma mater in order to realize what it truly means to be Lehigh for life.

There are five committees that are committed to specific events throughout the year, including Alumni Involvement, Community Outreach, Membership, Spirit and Unity.

ASA members gather in Brown 210 for a typical meeting.

Black Student Union

Lehigh University's Black Student Union is an organization which works to make the entire campus more aware of and concerned with issues that face all persons in the African diaspora. Simultaneously, it is one of the organization's most important goals not only to highlight the plights of African and African-American students but to also appreciate and ultimately celebrate their culture. Their goals are certainly broad and they encourage cultural awareness, academic success and philanthropy. The Black Student Union also participates in various social events. The major goal of the BSU stems from a social justice approach. The purpose of this initiative is to ensure the comfort, voice and ultimate success of its members. Understanding that African and African American students come from innumerable different backgrounds with different perspectives and concerns, the Black Student Union seeks to provide an inviting atmosphere where conversations and events focus on gender, race, socioeconomic status and sexual orientation. Reinforcing their vision and creating a more inclusive and united Lehigh community, they sponsor various presentations, benefit concerts and social events.

Lehigh University Engineers Without Borders (LU-EWB) is a chapter of Engineers Without Borders - USA (EWB-USA). EWB-USA is a non-profit humanitarian organization established to partner with developing communities worldwide in order to improve their quality of life. LU-EWB is a diverse organization consisting of students from all disciplines who are committed to serving the mission of EWB-USA.

Currently LU-EWB is partnering with a community of 1,500 people in Pueblo Nuevo, Honduras to address both water quality and quantity issues which negatively impact the entire population, especially children. Members of LU-EWB gain powerful real-life experience by working on all aspects of this project requiring solutions to technical, sociopolitical and educational problems. Students gain a more global perspective not only by working in teams with a diverse group of students and local professionals, but they also have the opportunity to travel to the project site and experience first-hand how their work can positively affect an entire community for the better.

Showing pride for what they do, EWB members write a message in the sand.

Equestrian

The Equestrian Club is a group of Lehigh students interested in horses and horseback riding. It consists of members at many different stages of riding ability including beginners to advanced riders. Advanced members have the opportunity to represent Lehigh at intercollegiate horse shows, but are not required to participate in those shows. The club plans field trips to national horse shows and fundraisers such as trail rides. Equestrian Club members train with Marisa Kalmar at Cornerstone Farm.

Marching Band

Who are those people who walk so strangely and wear silly hats?

You've seen us perform epic feats of leg-liftery (like this years legendary performance of Thriller), interrupt classes to play Goblet during Lehigh-Laf week and entertain crowds in the stands at football games with our amazing musical talents. We are, the always psyched, Marching 97—ready and rearing, gearing for anything.

The 97 is a unique student-run organization that performs at every home game and several away games.

Everything, including the drills we perform on the field, the music preparation, instrument and uniform distribution and care, the administrative obligations, and so much more is the responsibility of the members of the 97. The executive board, in cahoots with faculty advisor Al Neumeyer, is responsible for coordinating and letting this group (which aspires to be 96 members large plus one drum major) loose upon Lehigh's campus.

We love rooting at Lehigh Football games, especially when we beat the socks off Lafayette. We bring our own special brand of psyche when we yell as loud and as often as possible.

Student Senate XXI

The Student Senate is a body of students who act as representatives in voicing the concerns of the undergraduate community at Lehigh University. The Senate consists of 45 members from all of the university's living groups: fraternities, sororities, on-campus, off-campus and first-year students. The seats are divided proportionally in order to best represent the undergraduate population by affiliation and living groups.

In addition, The Senate is divided into a number of different sub-groups. There are three standing committees: Public Relations, Allocations and Club Affairs. The task of the Public Relations committee is to advertise and promote Senate and its activities. The Allocations committee is responsible for allocating the Senate's funds to many different recognized clubs. Club Affairs is responsible for providing services and resources to ensure these clubs succeed.

In the beginning of each academic year, the full Senate also recognizes CLIP committees who have specific goals and are organized for the entire academic year. This year, there are five CLIP committees: Healthy Living, Transportation, Student Safety and Advocacy, Community Relations, and Facilities and Student Spaces.

Dealing with temporary issues, ad-hoc committees are in place to deal with concerns as they arise throughout the year. Ad-hoc committees are formed and disbanded on an as-needed basis.

The Senate Executive Board is responsible for managing and directing all of these groups and the Senate as a whole in completing its mission. Members of the Student Senate XXI Executive board are Divya Nayar (President), Jordan Giallanzo (Vice President), Christopher Basilico (Treasurer), Beth Kertz (Secretary) and Stephen Wentz (Parliamentarian).

University Productions, commonly referred to as UP, is Lehigh University's programming board. We coordinate many of the events on campus for all students, including Sundaze, weekend movies in Kenner Theatre, Broadway shows and the Thursday Night Comedy Series at Lamberton. We aim to please as many students as possible and most of our events are either free or at minimal cost. UP is subdivided into five committees: Music, Comedy, Special Events, Marketing and Arts and Excursions (A&E). The Music committee brought various bands to campus and hosted the annual Battle of the Bands. Some performances included The Roots, Gym Class Heroes, Cake, Boys Like Girls, P.O.S., Edison Glass and Nightmare of You. The Comedy committee brought a diverse group of comedians to campus and hosted a large family weekend and Greek Week show. Additionally, they coordinated the Thursday night comedy series. Marketing provided advertisement for events and designed and maintained the website. Arts and Excursions coordinated off campus events, including going to a corn maze, trips to Philadelphia, New York and Yankee vs. Red Sox ball games. All other miscellaneous happenings were coordinated by the Special Events committee and included hypnotists and murder mystery dinner theater productions.

A Whole Step Up

In the year 2005 AD, in the month of February, four roommates gathered. Their purpose was conceived by the power of YHWH: to form an a cappella group. The foursome called themselves "The Procrastinators," and proceeded to not do much of anything at all. However, that fall, help was solicited, and soon the group quadrupled in size. Women came in droves to hear this new and addictive sound. The music coursed through their veins. Quickly, they found they were hungry, so they made waffles and toast. Some buttered their toast, while others did not. But I digress. No matter where they traveled, the newly renamed singing group, "A Whole-Step Up," shone a step above the competition. Currently 15 strong, A Whole-Step Up continues its mission in delivering high-quality music and comedy into the hearts, minds and souls of its listeners. Last spring, Whole Step presented Lehigh's first ever "Explicit Lyrics Concert." As third place finishers in the 2008 and 2009 ICCA quarterfinals, as well as recipients of awards for Best Arrangement and Best Choreography, the group has additional plans for the future, including many more sold out concerts and production of their first CD.

A variety of flavors were included in this year's most popular event -- Freeze with Liquid Nitrogen. In addition to this event, Alpha Chi Sigma also celebrated National Chemistry Week. The club also worked with the STAR (Students That Are Ready) program and various other groups to teach children about chemistry and encourage their continued pursuit of science.

Alpha Phi Omega is a co-educational community service fraternity that was founded at Lafayette

College in Easton, PA. Their goals include developing leadership, promoting friendship and providing service to humanity. With chapters at over 350 collegiate and university campuses worldwide, and an active membership of over 17,000 students, Alpha Phi Omega not only is the largest collegiate fraternity, but also is the only national fraternity with service to campus and community as its primary charge. Lehigh University's Alpha Psi chapter of Alpha Phi Omega received its charter in 1936, and since its inception, it is actively involved in promoting friendship and community service in and around Lehigh's campus. This past year over 140 active brothers in our chapter dedicated at least ten hours each to C.O.D. (Community Outreach

Day), The Boys-and-Girls Club of South Bethlehem, Relay for Life and many other chapter-sponsored and individual outreach programs. All this service was rendered while reinforcing an unbreakable sense of friendship and camaraderie among the brotherhood that will last a lifetime.

Honor Society*

Founded at Georgia Tech in 1949, Alpha Pi Mu is the only nationally recognized industrial engineering honor society.

Interest in all things chemistry unites the members of the ACS.

American Chemical Society

The Student Affiliates program of the American Chemical Society supports undergraduate students, their faculty and local section members in promoting professional development and mentoring. In addition, the program provides peer support for those majoring in the chemical sciences. Giving students a professional edge, affiliation with this society enables them to network with top professionals and attend scientific meetings, providing direct access to research. Affiliates receive helpful and informative publications, including "The Chemical & Engineering News" and the magazine "In Chemistry." They have access to career and employment services, as well as a directory of opportunities listing internships, co-ops and summer jobs.

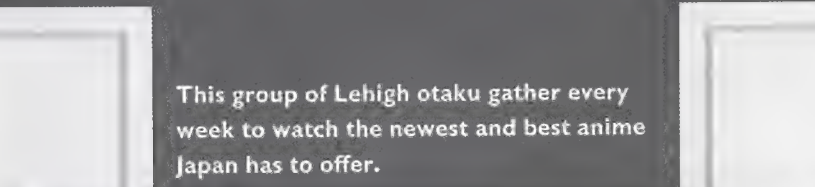

American Med Womens Association

Founded at Lehigh, the first undergraduate chapter of the American Medical Women's Association (AMWA) is an organization of female medical students and physicians. Striving to grow as a club and establish programs to benefit Lehigh students and the community, in the fall of 2008, they participated in Step Out Against Domestic Violence, a 5K held by Turning Point of Lehigh Valley. In the spring of 2009, they participated in Lehigh's Relay for Life. Throughout the year, they worked with several other Lehigh organizations and brought speakers to campus, including some very successful Lehigh alumni. Featuring a speaker from the American Heart Association, they partnered with the YWCA of Bethlehem and held an educational heart-health workshop for women and daughters of the local community.

This event incorporated various interactive components. Workshops such as these are successful in reinforcing the AMWA chapter goals in empowering women to make educated decisions about their health and those for whom they care. In the future, they hope to strengthen presence on campus and in the local community and to continue as an effective mentoring program for younger female pre-health students.

The club also seeks to internationalize Lehigh by bringing global issues to the forefront of campus. AIS was a key organizer of Rock 4 Haiti, a concert that sought to raise awareness of the conflict in Haiti.

The AIS represents a panoply of different cultures.

Baseball

Proudly, within the past five years, Lehigh's Club Baseball team climbed its way from near non-existence to become a prominent force in the Mid-Atlantic Baseball Alliance. With the leadership during those years of David Frisch, Kurt Wadsworth, Trent Muraoka and this year's captain Douglas F. Jackson, the members of the team not only grew into a competitive, cohesive unit, but also built lasting bonds and memories that continued well beyond the final game of the season. Whether they performed at a high level without a great deal of practice, or someone filled a position they never played before, members of the Lehigh Club Baseball team overcame adversity and simply smiled and said, "Anything to help the ball club." They all shared the common bond of loving the game of baseball and were happy to continue playing the game they love at a competitive level throughout their college years.

Batter's up at the Baseball Club!

Basketball Women

Founded just one year ago, the Women's Club Basketball team had an outstanding first season. The team enjoyed an overall record of 13-8 in the East Coast Women's Basketball League (ECWBL) competing against teams such as the University of North Carolina, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Delaware. The women ended their successful year by bringing home the PIRSA (Pennsylvania Intramural and Recreational Sports Association) State Championship. Jennilyn Chechia and Anne Feldman, two exceptional players, graduated this year and they will be sadly missed, but, with seven talented returning players, another phenomenal season looks to be in order.

These girls are all smiles now, but they play hard on the court.

Best Buddies take time to show they care by spending time with the disabled.

Best Buddies

Best Buddies is an international non-profit organization devoted to enhancing the lives of people with intellectual disabilities by matching them with college students. Throughout the year, buddy pairs form a bond by attending monthly activities, including Lehigh athletic events and other activities such as pumpkin painting. This year, the club consisted of thirty buddy pairs and ten associate members. At the beginning of the academic year, students were interviewed and paired with a buddy who had similar interests. They first met at the Match Party and then spent time together once a month and, in addition, communicated weekly through phone calls or email. A mutually enriching club, Best Buddies provides a lifelong lesson to participating members. Knowledge about the abilities of a disabled person and appreciation for a person's capabilities are gained as a result of participation in this club.

Catholic Student Union

During the 08-09 academic year, the Catholic Student Union moved from the Newman Center at 661 Taylor Street to the University Parish of Holy Ghost at 417 Carlton Street. Our newly-renovated Newman Hall has a reception area, a computer lab, a kitchenette, a student lounge (complete with pool table, fireplace and big-screen TV) and even a basketball court! We hosted many great events, including, "What Would Jesus Brew?" Coffee Night, "Angels' Wing" Night, Movie Night, "Dollar Dinner," a Lenten Twilight Retreat and bus trips to Philadelphia and Washington, D.C.. We also reached out to the local community through programs like Share Care and bi-weekly visits to Sacred Heart Senior Living Community.

Members of the Catholic Student Union grab some pizza between meetings.

Cheerleading

The LU cheerleaders are a very visible group on campus. They cheer for football in the fall, as well as the men's and women's basketball teams in the winter. They are also involved in promoting many university events (including the C.O.A.C.H. program and Lehigh University Relay for Life) and represent the spirit of the student body. Cheerleading is a club sport that is sponsored by the Athletic Department, which provides services to the squad including uniforms, equipment, access to athletic trainers, conditioning programs and funds for travel.

Cheerleading Club embodies the spirit of Lehigh.

Chinese Cultural Club

The purpose of the Chinese Cultural Club is to promote a better understanding of and appreciation for Chinese culture within the Lehigh community. One of the most important aspects of the Lehigh community is its multicultural nature. Organizations such as the Chinese Cultural Club allow students of international backgrounds to find a comfortable space for cultural expression and discussion of cultural issues.

The rich and complex history and customs of China are symbolized by the Great Wall.

The Class of 2012 contributed to the Lehigh community in many different and creative ways.

Class of 2012

The 2008-2009 school year was an exciting time for the class of 2012 and its officers. The officers, Alex Gromadzki, Lindsey Martin, Matt Howland and Olivia Gennusa organized events and fundraisers for the freshman class with the help of Team '12. In the fall, the class of 2012 hosted Lehigh's first "Battle of the Dorms." Teams of ten from freshman dorms across campus competed in a contest of strength, wit and skill. The events included a dodge ball tournament, tug of war and Family Feud.

Additionally, the 2012 officers contributed to Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza, held a campus wide sale of Valentine's Day candy grams, hosted a tailgate to kick off the basketball season, designed and sold class pajama pants and organized an event with our adoptive class of 1962.

College Republicans

Through club engagements including bringing speakers to campus, trips to Washington, firearms safety courses and talks by local civic leaders, the College Republicans seek to promote conservative ideals through action and dialogue. In the 2008-09 year, the College Republicans assisted in orchestrating the John McCain rally at Stabler Center and manned phone banks prior to the general election in November. In addition, the organization sent delegates to CPAC, the Conservative Political Action Conference.

The College Republicans discuss political issues.

Cricket

Still in its infancy as a club sport at Lehigh, the Cricket Club has risen quickly in stature. Practicing approximately once a week and playing in an intercollegiate tournament each year, the club is doing more than just getting their feet wet.

Last year, the team reached the semi-finals of the 10-team tournament they entered. Sporting an all-time winning-percentage well above .500, the only team to consistently give the Mountain Hawks trouble is Temple University, laying the groundwork for a potential rivalry.

If they continue performing at their current level, they will reach their full potential as a team.

The ball lies on the pitch, waiting for the Lehigh bowler.

Cycling

The Lehigh Cycling Club consists of over 20 active members who compete in year-round road, mountain and cyclocross events. Lehigh Cycling is part of the ECCC conference and competes against over 90 colleges and universities on the east coast. The 2008 mountain bike season kicked off in September with the Second Annual Lehigh Mountaintop MTB Classic. The weekend's events drew 175 riders and 22 teams to Lehigh's South Mountain.

After racing at the Eastern championships in Bethel, Maine, the mountain season concluded in October. Lehigh Cycling finished 3rd place of 25 schools in Division II with 4 riders qualifying for Collegiate Nationals.

Ballet is only one of many styles of dance featured by Dancin'.

Dancin'

The Dance Club at Lehigh, appropriately called Dancin', holds weekly classes in jazz, tap, ballet and hip hop. Different levels of dance classes (beginner, intermediate, and advanced) are held based on the demand of each. Teachers from outside studios, as well as students in the club, choreograph and teach dances that are performed in a recital at the end of the year. This club provides the entire Lehigh community with the opportunity to express themselves, obtain some good exercise, unwind after a hard week or simply to have fun through dance.

LU Dance Team

The Lehigh Dance Team includes talented dancers that strive to provide quality entertainment at a vast number of student and athletic events. While their backgrounds and training differ, all members have an extreme passion for dance and devote much of their time to the team. Performances include the freshman pep rally, Parent's Weekend football game, Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza, men and women's home basketball games, Fashion-4-A-Cure, Relay for life, International Bazaar, Spectacular Spectacular and Theta Chi Sweetheart. In March, they won gold at the New York City Dance Alliance competition for the second year in a row. The team is headed by captain Katie Bartkovitz with the help of her co-captains and dedicated team members. Co-captain Sarah Miller is the only senior team member graduating in the Class of 2009. We wish her the best of luck in all her future endeavors; she will be missed so much by her dance team family!

These talented dancers show off some of their moves.

Delta Sigma Pi

Delta Sigma Pi had a successful year as a colony and was incredibly busy with various activities and social events including a trip to Cleveland, Ohio and professional skills training with Career Services. In addition, we hosted company recruiters, held fund raising events and performed community service with the local and Lehigh community. We held our first ever officer elections. The group looks forward to charter status and hopes to become a full chapter next year. If this occurs, Delta Sigma Pi would have the honor of becoming the first professional business fraternity at Lehigh.

Delta Sigma Pi members meet to plan their next event.

Dental

The LU Dental Society is all students hoping to pursue a career in dentistry. Throughout the year, they participate in a number of different activities including dental hygiene presentations at nearby elementary schools and dental-related community events such as Give a Kid a Smile Day. Guest speakers frequently attend meetings to discuss their professional experiences and the profession of dentistry.

Echoes

Echoes is Lehigh's all-female acappella singing group. They began the year by welcoming eight new members and immediately started preparations for a performance at the wedding of two Lehigh alumni. Even so, they still had time to go on they annual Pacing Break tour, traveling to Boston and surrounding areas. In November, Echoes teamed with Melismatics for a joint concert, donating the proceeds to a local food bank. They then topped off the semester with a little fun by gathering together for a holiday date party. The spring semester began with Lehigh acappella's annual invitational concert, bringing groups from other schools to share their talent with the Lehigh audience. They spent the next few months preparing for their final concert, "Opposites Attract," where all-male groups from UConn and UMD were invited to perform between their sets. Ten new songs were introduced that evening, including special solos for seniors. They released their latest CD, "Real Girls Wear Blue." Finally, the year ended in the studio, recording favorite songs from this year to be recorded on a future album. A fond farewell to graduating members Mairin Augustine, Chrissie Rapp and Heidi Shonbeck!

The Echoes celebrate their friendship as well as their talent.

Fencing

The Lehigh University Fencing Club is the only current fencing club at the school. They are a co-ed club sport for the experienced as well as the inexperienced fencer. Competing in a number of tournaments each year, all three weapons are used, including foil, epee, and sabre.

They work with Warren Square's Green House, as well as ECo and other green groups on campus, to advocate different environmental issues including recycling, composting, eco-friendly transportation and reducing carbon footprints. Members traveled to the Powershift Convention in Washington D.C. (along with 10,000 other students around the country) to lobby their congressmen and representatives for a bill to reduce carbon emissions, create green jobs, and get rid of our country's dependence on oil. Every semester, Green Action helps run a "Green Week" and hosts several events and activities to encourage campus involvement. Members participate in events such as Earth Hour, campus-wide bike rides, recycling education, organic ice cream socials and a celebration of Earth Day.

Gymnastics

Throughout the year, the gymnastics club attended practice twice a week at Parkettes National Gymnastics Training Center. Club members steadily improved their gymnastics ability, learned new skills and increased their level of difficulty. With the help of their coaches, club members possessing various skill levels were able to challenge themselves in a fun environment. Whether someone had little or no previous experience, or had a highly competitive gymnastics background, the gymnastics club gave everyone a unique opportunity to participate in the sport that they all love!

Members of the Gymnastics Club demonstrate their flexibility.

HUBS is a recognized chapter of the National Hispanic Business Association.

History

The History Club is an extracurricular activity to advance interest in history beyond the classroom and to make it fun for everyone. Despite how it may sound, it is not meant for history majors alone. It is for anyone who wants to experience history in a new way. We work hard to provide exciting opportunities to undergraduate and graduate students alike to see history come alive.

The club organized movie nights, history lectures, holiday parties with themes around historical events and historical walks and house tours for its members. Bethlehem is a cozy home for Lehigh students, but only by knowing the past of this town can its present be understood. We encourage more people to join and learn the fun of the past! This year's officers and advisor were wonderful. A big thanks to Allie, Emily, Stephanie and Prof. LeMaster for helping to restart the club and finding ways to make History interesting to all members of the Lehigh community.

Members of the History Club worked hard to make history come alive for those outside of the program.

IEEE

Lehigh IEEE is proud to be the oldest student chapter of the national IEEE organization. With over 100 members, Lehigh IEEE continues to provide a way for students and faculty to come together and share ideas about everything electronic. This year Lehigh IEEE was able to sponsor a club trip to EcoTech Marine where members were inspired by Lehigh graduate, Tim Marks. We also held a 'Make&Take' event where members were introduced to functional circuits and design. Lehigh IEEE would like to congratulate its senior members and wish them luck in their upcoming careers.

IEEE provides new perspectives on the future of electronics.

Future industrial engineers begin their careers on the right track through their participation in IIE.

The Lehigh Chapter of the Institute of Industrial Engineers (IIE) is part of the National IIE organization, an affiliate of the National Professional Society for Industrial Engineers. It is open to students in the Industrial Engineering department or those interested in the field. The motive of the club is to promote real world experience within the Industrial Engineering field, while broadening connections with industry professionals. This year, the chapter, along with Industrial Engineering faculty, hosted a plant tour of Atlas Machining & Welding, Inc, a local precision machining plant. The club also helped organize the Science, Technology, Engineering and Technology (STEM) conference in the fall and plans to play a major role in assisting with the Industrial and Systems Engineering Department's 60th Anniversary. Through campus and community outreach, the Lehigh Chapter of IIE hopes to extend community and campus interest of the Industrial and Systems Engineering field.

The Indian Students Association is an organization that strives to create an understanding of South Asian culture within the Lehigh community. Their annual Diwali Show, which is the largest multicultural event on campus, is filled with entertainment, as students showcase vibrant performances that embody their rich culture. In light of the terrorist attacks in Mumbai, the organization hosted a Memorial Service to increase awareness of happenings around the world and to stand united against terrorism.

Investment Management Group

The Investment Management Group serves as a bridge to the financial markets for students. The group's goal is to promote an understanding and appreciation of financial markets through the management of its three investment portfolios, the Dreyfus Portfolio, the Rights Portfolio and the Value Portfolio. Collectively, the group invests over $400,000 in real money and is entirely student run. Each portfolio employs a different investment strategy, yet they operate together to limit risk and maximize return. In addition to managing the portfolios, the group actively engages with members of the finance and Wall Street communities through guest speakers and networking opportunities.

Korean Student Association

LUKSSA gathers together and experiences Eastern culture.

The Korean Student and Scholars Association welcomes anyone who is interested in Korean culture and events.

The club promotes interaction among those with Korean background, as well as the student body of Lehigh University. The Korean students in the club enjoy the scenery and quiet nature of the Lehigh Valley. Members of many different religions are welcome to join.

Many Korean exchange students within the group hope to remain in the Lehigh Valley, yet they can still enjoy and appreciate their own customs through participation in the club.

LUEMS

Lehigh University Emergency Medical Service is a student-run volunteer organization that provides competent emergency medical care to the Lehigh family. LUEMS is on call twenty-four hours a day and seven days a week during the fall, spring and summer semesters. The organization is composed of certified Pennsylvania EMT-Bs and others who wish to become EMTs in the future. LUEMS responds to a variety of emergency calls on campus (approximately 250 a year) and serves students, faculty and staff. The club is also present at many different stand-by events ranging from football games to Greek Week festivities. LUEMS maintains one quick response vehicle on campus and works closely with the City of Bethlehem EMS. LUEMS was founded in 1991 by a small group of students and has grown to now include over 75 student members.

LUEMS members learn valuable skills and earn the satisfaction of helping those in need.

LU Sound

LU Sound is a student organization that provides live sound support at a reasonable cost for student groups for on-campus events. LU Sound was created not only to provide live sound support but also to help students who have an interest in sound technology become familiar with the equipment, vocabulary and companies of the sound industry.

LU Sound provides technical support for many of Lehigh's events.

Future doctors can experience a bit of the healthcare field through the Lehigh Medical Society.

Medical Society

The Student Medical Society is an organization that helps students prepare for medical school, discern their interests and make connections that will assist in achieving goals. They invite doctors to campus to speak about their fields and to advise students regarding opportunities related to health care. In effect, the Student Medical Society provides a peer support system for students interested in medicine. This year, speaking physicians included a surgeon from St. Luke's Hospital and an anesthesiologist from Temple School of Medicine. They co-sponsored a lecture by the founder of Unite for Sight with the Public Health Coalition. Additionally, they traveled to Philadelphia, PA to visit the fascinating Mutter Museum and the innovative McGee Rehabilitation Center. Looking back on this successful year with pride, they hope to expand peer support network in the future and become a valuable presence on the Lehigh campus!

Microfinance

The purpose and aim of the Lehigh University Microfinance Club is to create an environment for students and faculty to learn about the international microfinance sector and to organize activities to promote microfinance as a tool for alleviating poverty worldwide. During the Fall '08 and Spring '09 semesters, the club successfully organized numerous events and projects, including the Ten Thousand Villages Sale, Lehigh Microcredit Fund, Lehigh Valley Microenterprise Expo and The Two Dollar Challenge. Through these projects, the group raised over $6K to support economic development in poor countries around the world. The club also sponsored student trips to New York City and Washington D.C. to meet with microfinance practitioners in order to learn more about the industry's unique goals and challenges. Over the course of the year, the group hosted several notable speakers including Elizabeth Israel of Green Microfinance, Lynne Patterson of ProMujer, Tony Singleton of FINCA International and Jennifer Isern of the World Bank. The members of the Lehigh Microfinance Club aspire to become leaders in the field of international development by supporting poverty alleviation and economic growth in developing countries around the world.

The Microfinance Club doesn't always meet in a classroom.

Members of M&C love the theatre and promote drama on campus in a variety of ways.

Mustard and Cheese

The Mustard & Cheese Drama Society has been creating, supporting and promoting theatre at Lehigh since it was founded by Richard Harding Davis and Charles Belmont Davis in 1884. This year M&C strove to generate as many experiences and opportunities for its members as possible in areas of performance and design. The club organized a stage-combat workshop and play readings. They also presented several student-directed productions, ran trips to see productions of August: Osage County and Blithe Spirit in New York City and upheld its traditional contributions to the Department of Theatre such as opening night receptions, concession sales and the popular "wing night." M&C also sponsored performances by Lehigh's two improv troupes.

It is the drama society's goal to increase the frequency of full membership meetings and facilitate more exchange among its members and alumni. Throughout the year, the board created monthly events to couple with these meetings, including the traditional Welcome Back Barbecue, a Summer Experience forum and play-readings. In celebration of M&C's 125th Anniversary, alumni were invited back the Lehigh to attend a gala alongside of current students, faculty and staff. The club aspires to enhance its potential in the continuation of reaching out to the student body as well as members of the surrounding community, bringing theatre into their lives and sparking their interest and participation in theatre at Lehigh University.

The Pep Band sits on the stands and plays one of many songs to support Lehigh's players.

Pep Band

This year, Pep Band is under new leadership and is trying to make a new start here at Lehigh. Pep Band is a musical organization that plays at men's and women's basketball games, some wrestling matches, and other sporting events throughout the season. This year, for the first time ever, we took a trip up to Troy, New York for the Northeast Duals (Wrestling). Most of the Pep Band members are also involved in the Marching 97. We have a lot of fun playing music at games and cheering for Lehigh. Pep Band brings a lot of energy to the stands and really tries to get the crowd pumped up.

Every year, we try to do new events and old events and as always cheer on the team we all love.

Phi Sigma Pi

The Delta Chi Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity celebrated their seventh anniversary at Lehigh on December 3, 2008. Phi Sigma Pi is based on a tripod of scholarship, leadership, and fellowship. The brothers of the chapter exemplify and foster these qualities through various events during the year. This year they hosted very successful events in both kickball and volleyball. They volunteered at the Crayola Factory as well as the local Boys and Girls club in Easton. Brothers created events where they taught each other skills, ranging from "How to go Green" to an event on rock climbing. Delta Chi welcomes all of its new brothers and wishes all graduating seniors the best of luck.

There's no lack of enthusiasm among the Phi Sigma Pi brothers!

Psychology

The Psychology Club is an academic organization whose members are mostly psychology majors or minors. Membership, however, is open to any student with an interest in psychology. Over the past year, members of the club participated in the fall and spring club fair to inform Lehigh students about the organization. In the fall they invited a panel of people who graduated with a degree in psychology. The panel discussed their professions and how their current field of work relates to psychology.

Prior to spring registration, club members held a meeting to discuss psychology courses. Students shared their experiences and preferences for courses in an effort to assist others in selecting classes. Psychology professors speak to the club about their specific field of interest and the courses they teach. In addition to these special events, meetings are held each semester to discuss future events and to brainstorm regarding ideas.

The Psychology Club works with the Valley Youth House, which provides counseling to local families.

Real Estate

The focus of the Lehigh University Real Estate Club encompasses all sectors of real estate – commercial, industrial, retail and residential. This student run organization featured speakers from the myriad of professions that impact a real estate transaction – from architects, attorneys, brokers and developers to zoning officials. The club hosts informal get-togethers with recent alumni and local professionals to discuss topics of interest to the members - career opportunities, market conditions, sustainable building and design and the role of LEED certification. Recent Real Estate Club field trips have included guided tours of Martin Tower, the Bethlehem Steel site and downtown Bethlehem.

A visit to the Bethlehem Steel site provides a new perspective on real estate.

The RUF conveys their message to the public with many different events.

Reformed University Fellowship

The purpose of Reformed University Fellowship (RUF) is to reach students at Lehigh University for Christ and to equip them to serve Christ, the church, the campus and the world. We accomplish this with a variety of activities. Central to all we do are our Tuesday night fellowship meetings for worship and teaching, given by an ordained minister. Throughout the week, we have Bible studies in the dorms where we discuss the Bible and how it applies to our lives as Lehigh students. We also have daily noon prayer, Friday night social events, retreats and service projects. The entire Lehigh community of students, faculty and staff are welcome and invited to participate in this organization. We desire that everyone at Lehigh know, love and worship Jesus Christ. We seek to spread the good news of eternal life in Christ to all, and help them grow in that life with Him.

Rugby Men's

Founded in 1969, the Men's Rugby Club takes pride in a strong tradition and having an intense competitive nature. Players range from those with years of experience to those who have never set foot on a rugby pitch. The diverse background of players allows for a competitive, well-balanced team. When they're not playing rugby, the members on the team tend to stick together and form strong bonds with one another, which translates to success on the field. Unfortunately, the fall season resulted in the team missing the EPRU playoffs by one game. However, the team was not discouraged. The team had a strong showing in the spring, and with a good amount of players returning next year, they expect to be one of the top squads in their division. In the end, the club is all about having a good time and playing rugby, and that's what they do best.

The men of Club Rugby stay strong on the field and work together.

Rugby Women's

Lehigh's Women's Club Rugby team is made up of a fun group of about 30 girls. The team practices during both the fall and spring semesters. This past fall, they finished with a record of 2-2. A highlight of this season was being invited to attend the Eastern Pennsylvania Rugby Union regional playoffs. The team played one of their best games. They ended up losing to the playoff champions in the final minutes, but received recognition for a well-fought battle. The team will be graduating a large senior class this year, consisting of Devin Carey, Alison Harkins, Tane Kaymez, Maura Douglas, Corey Luthringer, Mary Gross, Eve Gottesman, Jenny Lofaro, Jen Bruchok, Emily Szabo, Dana Henderson and Hilary Chadwick. The seniors will miss the team, but feel confident leaving it in the hands of some all-star underclassmen.

These women are proud of their success as a team. Congratulations on a great season!

Soccer Men's

The Soccer Club consists of approximately 30 members. Each week the top 20 most committed members are selected to play each weekend against other colleges' club soccer teams.

They play other colleges that are within a three-hour radius of Lehigh. There are approximately 12 games in the fall including playing in the regional tournament. Additionally, in the spring, they play approximately six games and occasionally enter a tournament.

Between the fall and spring semesters, during the winter, practice is held indoors.

Soccer is considered one of the most popular sports in the world, and the men of Club Soccer agree.

Soccer Women's

The women's club soccer team went undefeated during the 2008-09 school year. Highlights of the year included a win over powerhouse University of Pennsylvania for the first time in four years, as well as beating Lafayette College shorthanded on their own Fisher Field. The team also enjoyed wins over schools such as Bucknell University, Fairfield University, Messiah College and West Chester University. A core group of juniors controlled the midfield including Meredith Talbot, Kelly Covello, Rosey Leith and Makenzie Wolfe, while junior Jen Bambara and freshman Cait Harney produced up top. The team's solid defensive unit, which included sophomore Danielle Uber, was backed up by standout goalkeepers junior Dari Brooks and freshman Kate Larkin. The team will be returning all players except for lone senior and team captain Jennilyn Checchia.

The ladies of Club Soccer were successful this season, thanks to their close bonds and teamwork.

Snowboarding

The Snowboard Club is open to all skiers and snowboarders looking to meet and ride with others who share their enthusiasm for snow sports.

The club members range from beginner skiers and riders to expert carvers and park junkies. During the winter season, the club takes two trips per week to the local ski resorts, Blue Mountain and Camelback.

Society of Physics Students

The Society of Physics Students is an organization that provides an outlet for science-minded members of the Lehigh community. This year, they continued efforts to support Dr. DeLeo's science outreach programs, hosted a fantastic physics barbeque complete with Bunsen burner hot cider, visited the Three Mile Island Nuclear Plant and built a cantaloupe-launching trebuchet in a week and a half for Kutztown's Cantalobber contest.

They celebrated the graduation of seven majors and three grad students, and marked the retirement of Dr. Bob Folk, after countless years at Lehigh. It's been a good year for Physics at Lehigh.

Society of Women Engineers

Lehigh University's Society of Women Engineers is dedicated to inspiring young women to consider a career in the field of engineering. Because women are such a minority in this field and because many children don't discover engineering until they have already begun their college education, the organization strives to introduce this possible career path to young women early in their educational careers. In order to help engineering thrive and remain diverse, they seek to share the excitement with girls in grades K-12. SWE volunteers in many programs for young women, acting as leaders of engineering experiments, and explaining the fundamentals of engineering at each step in the design and creation processes. Furthermore, they continuously work to inspire Lehigh's female engineering students through events, including seminars, conferences and panel discussions. SWE empowers women to succeed and advance in their aspirations and be recognized for their life-changing contributions and achievements as engineers and leaders.

These women engineers take time out from their hard work to enjoy a frozen treat.

Spanish

The Spanish Club is devoted to bringing cultural diversity to Lehigh University. They are an organization for those who want to learn more about the Spanish culture and interact with others who share this common interest. The club provides opportunity to practice Spanish with other Lehigh students, and opportunity for involvement with the surrounding Hispanic community.

Events held included movie nights, a taco eating contest, a trip to the Boys and Girls Club, making dinner at the Victory House homeless shelter, participating in the language exchange program, a teleconference with Venezuelan students, Calle Nueva and the International Bazaar.

The Spanish Club is a diverse group of students eager to experience Spanish culture.

Spectrum

Spectrum is Lehigh's LGBTQIA student group. The group functions as a social network as well as an organization that promotes awareness and activism for LGBTQIA issues. This year was highly successful. Not only did the group double in size, but they also held a number of successful events.

In September they went to Gay Days at Six Flags. During October they celebrated Coming Out Day by having the Rainbow Room "come out" onto the UC front lawn. November saw the Thanksgiving dinner celebrated with the Multicultural Center and the Women's Center. They held weekly meetings and bi-weekly coffeehouses in which they socialized and held discussions about LGBTQIA topics. This spring, they held the fifth annual Illusions Drag Show. They had a very exciting year and hope to continue the success by spreading awareness throughout Lehigh's campus.

Spectrum promotes awareness of alternative lifestyles through fun and successful trips and programs.

Swing

Lehigh University Swing Club is a student run organization that provides free weekly lessons in various swing styles to all skill levels. LUSC is also responsible for bringing local, school and national bands to Lamberton for late-night dancing.

Club participants organized a performance group in the spring called Steel City Swingers who performed choreographed numbers both on and off campus. Guest instructors, swing games and friendly faces can all be found at the weekly club lessons where your own ambition is the only thing standing between you and greatness.

Table Tennis

The Table Tennis Club is a casual organization where diverse undergraduate and graduate students come together and play table tennis on a weekly basis. The club frequently has small tournaments during the weekly meetings and holds two campus-wide tournaments each year. The larger tournaments usually attract approximately fifty players, and a fun time is had by all.

In the past, the club played matches against Lafayette College, and some members have played in tournaments at the Lehigh Valley Table Tennis Club. All skill levels are represented in the club, and everyone is welcome to come, play and have fun at the meetings in a friendly but competitive environment.

The Table Tennis Club stands, paddles at the ready, for the next match.

The main purpose and aim of Thai Students at Lehigh University shall be to promote more involvement in activities, to provide extracurricular activities to Thai Students and those interested in Thai culture, to recognize and gather all Thai students at Lehigh University, to keep members informed of the current activities and to promote and foster an awareness and appreciation of Thai culture.

Volleyball Men's

The Lehigh University Men's Volleyball team competes in the Mid-Atlantic Club Volleyball Conference (MACVC) in the North Division. Lead by senior Captain Alan Abeel and Juniors Andrew Kump and Alejandro Montoya, the squad was very successful the past few years, usually finishing in the top two spots of the division.

The team competes against most college club teams from Pennsylvania and New Jersey in both match and tournament play. Early in the 2009 season, the Lehigh team won its home quad tournament that also included Bucknell University, Ursinus College and Seton Hall University. However, the two biggest rivalries are with Lock Haven University and Lafayette College.

Lehigh defeated Lafayette for three consecutive years and hopes to continue its success through the rest of the 2009 season. With only two seniors on the roster (Alan Abeel and Kenny Blanchette), the group will progress even further over the next few years. Creating a powerful core for the future, freshmen Chase Slavin, Jared Lucas, Kevin Barrett and John Birkholz have already received starting positions.

The Men's Volleyball Club gathers in Grace Hall for a practice session.

Recently accepted into NWVCL, the future looks bright for Women's Club Volleyball.

Volleyball Women's

Lehigh Women's Club Volleyball grew tremendously since its founding three years ago.

This year the team was accepted into the Northeast Women's Club Volleyball League (NWVCL). They were eager to play in actual tournaments with certified referees. During the fall semester, they attended a tournament at Rutgers University and placed eighth. They also traveled to Lafayette College and defeated the Leopards in the fifth game of a very close match. In the spring, they attended a tournament at the University of Pennsylvania and ended by placing sixth. They were very excited to host the Lafayette Men's and Women's Club Volleyball teams for a successful double-header match in March. The goal of the Women's Club Volleyball team is to achieve a perfect balance of fun and competition. When not practicing or participating in tournaments, the girls play pick-up games on one of Lehigh's outdoor sand courts. They look forward to continued growth and anticipate an exciting season next year!

Water Polo

While the Lehigh Water Polo team previously experienced better seasons, it did have some amazing highs this year. Senior captain and goalie, Alex Jones, was named the NCAA Mid-Atlantic Division Player of the Week for the week of September 15th. In addition, the team finished the fall season with a blowout win against the University of Delaware.

Unfortunately, the team is saying goodbye to graduating seniors Bethany Ashman, Alex Jones, Kim Rofrano, Andrew Scavone, Alex Seipp and grad student Michael LaVigne.

Despite losing several members to graduation, the water polo team recruited several freshmen, including Hannah Westfall and James Malone, who will help to ease the team's loss. Rising seniors Mike Fedorka and Libby DeFeo will lead the young team to victory.

The girls and guys of the Water Polo team love the water and the competition.

Wind Ensemble

The Wind Ensemble at Lehigh University is a select group of about 50 students dedicated to the performance of music specifically written for woodwinds, brass and percussion. The heart of our repertoire is the music of 20th century American composers, but our complete repertoire includes wind music from the 16th century to the present, and from the various countries around the world. This versatility is possible because each member of the ensemble serves as a principal player and soloist. The Wind Ensemble presented two concerts this year. The first, Treasures for Winds, presented cherished wind ensemble standards by such notable composers as John Phillip Sousa and Percy Grainger, and featured a vocal soloist. The second concert, Down to the Sea in Ships, revived timeless maritime classics by Ralph Vaughan Williams and Richard Rogers and concluded with a surprise medley from today's most popular swashbuckling movie franchise!

For the Wind Ensemble, the key to playing well is to watch the conductor and read music simultaneously.

WLVR-FM

WLVR 91.3 FM is Lehigh University's student-run radio station. The station provides a unique experience unlike other University clubs. Unlike many other college radio stations, "LVR" DJ's are not restricted to a certain type of programming or told what to play. As a result, what the station offers is very diverse. There is a wide variety of non-music programming, including talk shows and Mountain Hawks' sports broadcasts. WLVR continued its recent success this past year as the station took home its fourth consecutive Lehigh Valley Music Award for "Best College/Community Radio Station." They also received other awards and nominations as well, including "Best On-Air Personality." WLVR continues to be at the top of Lehigh Valley radio, providing a wide listener base with quality programming and an alternative to the norm.

Class of 2012

Freshman Send-off is one of the first opportunities for new Lehigh students to meet some of their fellow classmates. Most freshmen are a bit timid at first but also eager to make a friend or two with whom they can keep in contact until classes start.

At this year's Lehigh Home Club send-off, students who live close to Lehigh were invited to the Alumni Memorial Building for refreshments and a meet and greet with alumni and members of their incoming class. Two alumni were honored for their involvement. Many other alumni, as well as current students, welcomed the the incoming class of 2012.

The speakers encouraged the freshmen to study hard and have fun, while the parents were reminded to trust their kids. Parents were told that they would soon see their children again, and the hastiness of their visit most likely would depend upon how soon their children tired of their roommates.

LET THE TRADITION BEGIN

Though the incoming freshmen listened intently, they were not aware of how true the words were, while upperclassmen chuckled at the accuracy of the predictions. Divya Nayar '10 commented, "My sister will be a freshman and she's heard about my Lehigh experience thus far, but I think there's a lot more to college life than these incoming first-years realize."

The Outdoor Advantage

Each year freshmen have the opportunity to engage in pre-orientation experiences that allow them to interact with and meet members of their incoming class. The three available opportunities are: Arts Alive, South Side Serve (South Bethlehem Experience), and the Outdoor Adventure Program (OAP). Freshmen arrive at Lehigh three days early and share fun activities outside the academic setting.

Participants in the OAP program travel to the Pocono Environmental Education center, where students engage in activities including a low ropes course, rafting and paintball. This provides freshman an opportunity to live with their classmates, and it provides a good introduction to college life for the incoming Mountain Hawks.

Matt Howland '12, recalls flipping his raft and going down part of the Lehigh River with the raft upside down while surfing down class 1.5 rapids. Similarly, paintballing always proves an adventure, especially when students are inadvertently hit in the throat with paintballs and are left with a welt when they return to Lehigh.

The trip is memorable for leaders as well as students. The leaders enjoyed staying up late and talking in their cabins. Lauren Campo '09, an OAP leader for the past three years, said that she really enjoyed "...watching all the freshmen finally get comfortable with each other and allowing themselves to make friends and have fun."

FORMING FRIENDSHIPS

When students return, they appreciate the delicacies of Rathbone after eating camp food for three days. Despite the cold temperatures some nights, students come back from OAP with a unique experience that gives them a sense of camaraderie with other members of their Lehigh class.

Not only does OAP serve as a fun bonding experience for some members of the incoming class, but it also allows them to feel more comfortable when they get back to school. "You get to know a lot more people beforehand, which helps because you know people your first night at Lehigh, while people who just arrived don't know anyone but their roommate," recalled Howland.

Bed Races

Feel the Rhythm, Feel the Rhyme, Get on Up it's Bed Races Time!

Team '10 hosted this year's Second Annual Lehigh-Lafayette Bed Races. This year's race featured separate men's and women's brackets, allowing both Team '10 and Pi Beta Phi to be crowned champions. New this year was an award for "Best Decorated Bed," which resulted in many interestingly decorated pieces of dorm furniture.

Almost every team dressed up, with themes including Santa's helpers, the Aviators and two Jamaican bobsled/"Cool Runnings" teams. Sigma Phi Epsilon's team, the "Green Monkeys," even fringed their outfits with brown and white Lehigh pompoms, and Alpha Omicron Pi decorated their bed with metallic streamers.

The spectators cheered as each team entered with their theme song and raced down Library Drive. Unlike last year, no bed collided with cars. Everyone seemed to have a good time watching the races and enjoying Lehigh brownies. "There was so much more energy this year; the costumes were really creative and some groups even matched their beds," commented Christen Ritterger '11. Team '10 brought the tradition of Bed Races back to Lehigh last year, and from the looks of things, Bed Races are sure to become a tradition as iconic to Lehigh-Laf week as the Turkey Trot.

A Successful Synergy

The most famous coffee chain in the world is finally making its mark on the Lehigh campus. Major renovations in Campus Square took place over the summer of 2008, none bigger than the placement of a Starbucks café within the Lehigh Bookstore. The change was a surprise to the upperclass students, which resulted in a few marked reactions.

"I like the idea a lot," stated Charles Stellberger '11. "I like to drink coffee in the morning so it's really cool that they now have a place where I can go get some before I head out to class." Although many students applauded the change, others were indifferent. "I don't drink coffee so it wasn't really a big deal to me," commented Jon Fishbein '11. The majority of Lehigh students seemed to like the new addition. The new Starbucks usually has long lines of students waiting to get their morning joe before class or late-night coffee to help them stay awake while doing homework.

The addition of the new Starbucks to the bookstore resulted in other changes throughout the store. Items have been rearranged in ways different from how they have been in previous years. Also, a new convenience store called Market on the Square opened directly opposite the bookstore. Food, drinks and other essentials are now sold here instead of back at the Bookstore. Charles Stellberger '11 liked this change as well: "It's pretty cool how they separated this from the Bookstore. Now it's easier to find certain stuff. Plus, now everything's not all crammed onto two floors of the bookstore."

The only problem some students seemed to have with these new changes were the hours of operation. Stacy Lim '10 was one of them: "That's the only real issue I have against the new Starbucks. It closes at around 9 p.m., and for me, and I'm sure many other students here, we study the most late at night. So, it would be nice to see Starbucks open that late so that we can stay awake with coffee." Nevertheless, the addition of Starbucks garnered, for the most part, much approval from Lehigh students. Now we can truly call ourselves a college campus.

21st Birthdays

The clock strikes midnight and...

Birthday celebrations typically involve a flurry of frosting and friends. A milestone birthday like your 21st brings forth a different celebratory element for the newly legal birthday boy or girl. On their 21st birthday, students can flash their ID's and walk into McGrady's for the first time to meet a line of friends ready to buy them a round of birthday drinks.

Katherine Gentile '09 was the last of her friends to turn 21, so she was more than ready for her big night. The night before her birthday, Gentile celebrated in a traditional way with all of her friends at TreScalini, an Italian restaurant on the North Side and then went to the bar at midnight. The following day she continued her celebration by visiting several of the South Side's bars with her friends.

While many students celebrate their 21st by heading to the bar as soon as possible, others chose a more laid-back celebration. CJ Berzin '10 turned 21 in September. He chose to celebrate his birthday by going to dinner at Starters with friends and family. Chris Mandeon '09 was the first from his group of friends to turn 21. He went to class on this birthday, but visited McGrady's afterwards for happy hour to celebrate. "I was grateful I didn't have classes the day after my birthday, but I wish more people were old enough to come celebrate with me," said Mandeon.

Mikael Borneo and Victoria Hessler '10 took Dirty Girl Scout shots at McGrady's to celebrate Hessler's 21st birthday.

Katherine Gentile '09 celebrated her birthday with a bar crawl with her best friend from home and Kim Donovan '09.

House Decorating Contest

Until the 1980's, residence halls competed in a house decorating contest during Lehigh-Lafayette week. This year, the house decorating contest was resurrected. Sponsored by the Class of 2011, residence halls, fraternities, sororities and all other living areas decorated their living space for a chance to win $500.

Decorating began Sunday, November 16 and ended on Wednesday, November 19, 2008. This year's winners, announced at Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza, were the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. Houses were judged based on creativity, use of materials, Lehigh spirit, quality of design and overall look. Ken Jackson '09 from Phi Sig said the contest was a great idea because it definitely added to the spirit of Lehigh-Laf week. "All of the brothers were excited to go to the pep rally to see if we won," Jackson stated. Their house decorations included a wooden cage containing a stuffed leopard with a mountain hawk on top, a zip line with a flying mountain hawk and Christmas lights that blinked in time with a number of Lehigh fight songs.

Alpha Gamma Delta's winning decoration included cutouts of the Mountain Hawk and a trophy with a Lafayette Leopard hanging from it. The 144 represented the 144th playing of the Lehigh-Lafayette Rivalry this year.

Hallway Happenings

When first coming to college, the transition into dorm life may be difficult for some freshmen. It may be their first experience with sharing a room or bathroom, and it may be weird to have members of the opposite sex who aren't related to you living right next door. To help everyone feel less nervous and to get to know each other in a neutral setting, gryphons or the residents organize a dinner where the whole hall eats together. They may grab a huge table at Rathbone, get takeout or order in. Either way, having a meal together in a casual setting helps relieve the stress of the week. Julia Pieper '12 says, "My hall decided to order food together on Sundays so that we could all relax together before the start of a new week."

As the semester progresses, schedules become more hectic and having these dinners gives everyone a chance to catch up, especially if they haven't seen some members of their hall in a while. Kate Phyfe '12 says, "It was a nice way to get to see everyone again especially as people became more busy and had rush and pledge events making it difficult to see them during the week."

These dinners aren't exclusive of hallways. Pledge classes get together, as well as groups of friends who may not see each other during the week because of hectic schedules. As second semester work accumulates, grabbing a meal with friends becomes a welcome escape and an excellent chance for friends to catch up and take a break from their crazy college schedules.

Dorm Days

The Game of "Assassin"

In the beginning of the fall semester, a few freshmen came together with a new and creative way for freshmen to get to know one another. The idea was simple: a campus wide game of "Assassin." "Assassin" is a game where players have a target they must eliminate by hitting him/her with a sock. David Essenther '12, the founder of the game on Lehigh's campus stated, "I originally wanted to start this game because one of my friends at Temple University in Philadelphia, PA told me that they were playing, and I thought it sounded like fun, so I talked to my friends here at Lehigh about it." A Facebook group and event was quickly created to spread the word and to give updates to the remaining players.

The game began September 21st with over 150 students playing. Karen Timmerman '12 said, "I decided to play Assassin because it looked like a fun and unique way to meet new people on campus." This game brought many students together including acquaintances from classes and hall mates. Henry Weinberger '12 embraced the challenge to meet new people in order to succeed in the game: "Assassin was a networking game. Therefore, of course, it helps you meet new people. You need to get out of your comfort zone and seek the help of others you usually don't talk to." Although the game never really finished, the creators were happy with the turnout. "I think the game worked really well. For the amount of time that people wanted to play, it was a lot of fun and there were many people who participated," commented Noelle Smart '12.

Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza

A New Twist on an Old Tradition

Instead of Rally on the Hill, this year ASA (The Association of Student Alumni) held Lehigh-Laf-a-Palooza as part of the buildup to the Lehigh-Lafayette game. The event was held in Rauch Courtyard and some performances included the Dance Team, the Step Team, Chinese YoYos and the band State Radio. Everyone seemed to enjoy the event, as ASAs threw commemorative foam footballs into the crowd and the cheerleaders led students in rousing the team to victory.

One of the big draws of the event was the unveiling of the new name of the Mountain Hawk. After a variety of suggestions were submitted over the course of the semester, "Clutch" was finally revealed as the Mountain Hawk's new moniker. Among other suggestions were Steel, LUie, Maverick, Talon, Engineer and Engie. Several alumni and current students jockeyed for names recalling the traditional "Lehigh Engineer" mascot or elements of Bethlehem history, while other students focused on more current names or those pertinent to sports jargon.

TV Time

What's on TV Tonight?

Watching TV shows are seen as an integral part of a typical "lazy scene." But many would argue that TV could be intellectually stimulating and entertaining. Here at Lehigh, this year's freshmen created their own reasons for why they camp out and watch this year's hit shows. Among the top most viewed were "Gossip Girl," "The Hills" and "The Office." The majority of this year's hit television shows aired during the week, which of course means that homework was done previously...right? Well in any case, it was not uncommon to see a swarm of ladies, and some gents, gathering the popcorn and pillows to watch "Gossip Girl" in their dorm lounges. The masses all seem to agree that the best part of these shows is their drama, suspense and comedic appeal. Caitlyn Lia, a freshman from Dravo, said, "Drama, suspense between the episodes, and the hot actors make the show so good!"

Another show that became a dorm favorite is "The Office." This show's comedy is loved by many and was a great way for students to laugh after a long day of classes and work. Quotes from the show were often seen on dorm doors and repeated throughout the halls in conversation. One quote from Season 5's "Weight Loss" episode was thrown around McClintic & Marshall for quite some time.

PUTTING YOUR BRAIN ON PAUSE

"Dwight Schrute: This is what I'm gonna do. I'm going to randomly select three names, and these three people will get liposuction. Ughhhh. Stanley, Phyllis, Kevin. And you will be responsible for your own medical bills." It is quotes like these that made Dwight and "The Office" loved by students. TV shows were not only for entertainment but were also a great way to make friends and meet others in your hall. Madison Sims from M&M (McClintic & Marshall) said, "I watch [The Hills] once a week every Monday, usually with my girlfriends in the hall."

Study Abroad

Studying abroad is a unique opportunity for college students. Those who participate in this program often do so during their junior year. Some students may choose to live in a home with a local family, which is an ideal way to immerse themselves in the daily life of their chosen city. Nicole Froschhauser '09 lived in a home in Madrid with another Lehigh student. "It was a great way to practice my Spanish and understand the culture better," she said. Other programs housed students in apartments or dorms, which offer more independence and allows for more direct interaction with other international students.

Academics are also different abroad, and students have the option to choose between American Universities with satellite schools or programs that are integrated into a foreign university. Students proficient in another language also have the option to apply for programs where they are immersed in the native language of the country rather than programs in English.

Students also travel on weekends to explore other countries and cities. Europe is easy to navigate because every place is relatively close, an easy train or flight away. Carey Moran '09, spent a few weeks traveling with friends after her program. "I visited Italy and Greece and went to remote places that I had never even heard of. It was an amazing way to end my abroad experience," she said.

"I loved my program; it was academics and working," said Meredith Mullen '09, who studied at Boston University in London.

Student Information and Order of Exercises
http://www.mtsu.edu/commencement

Monday, May 18th was an unusually windy and chilly morning for this year's commencement exercises. Students bundled up under their gowns and held tightly to their caps as they marched onto the football field. Senior class president Scott Wojciechowski gave a motivating and heartfelt speech to fellow classmates. Commencement speaker Jeffrey Sachs gave hope to Lehigh graduates to solve problems facing the world today. Sachs, along with Wendy Doniger and Shing-Tung Yau, received honorary degrees. As students walked up to shake hands with President Alice Gast and receive their diplomas, others cheered on from their seats while taking turns hitting inflatable beach balls. Senior Elizabeth Jenkins then led her class in The Alma Mater. Once the ceremony was over, family and friends abandoned their blankets on the bleachers to congratulate their graduates.

Graduates

From the desk of Dr. Alice P. Gast:

To the Class of 2009:

Let me first extend my heartfelt congratulations to all of you. It has been a year filled with many extraordinary events, both on campus and around the world, and I applaud your hard work and resulting accomplishments.

As you engage in your next adventure, I encourage you to reflect on your experiences and on the many things that you have learned in your years at Lehigh. Your ability to form bonds with people from all parts of the world, to define and solve problems and to ask questions as well as provide answers prepares you to contribute greatly to a world that sorely needs great contributors.

As you know, helping to make the world a better place has been fundamental to Lehigh University from the beginning. Asa Packer understood that many of society's issues could be best addressed by providing a balanced education to students who are eager to make a difference in the world. The foresight of our founder in 1865 is just as important today as it was then. You have continued that tradition by making the best of your time at Lehigh and preparing yourself to make the world a better place.

Upon the passing of our founder, Harper's Weekly had this to say about him: "His whole career is another example of what young men in this country may accomplish through keen intelligence, dauntless energy, and unyielding integrity."

The world is very different today than it was when those words were published in 1879. But the same attributes that made Asa Packer the visionary that he was are no less relevant to us. I know that you will use your keen intelligence, dauntless energy and unyielding integrity to make your lives and the lives of others better.

I encourage you to set your sights high and to remember the faculty, staff and fellow students at Lehigh who all contributed to preparing you for the future. I also encourage you to keep in touch with your alma mater and help us to make Lehigh a better place for future generations of students while making the world a better place for all.

Sincerely,

Alice P. Gast

Sarah,
From a very young age you took pride in everything you did with careful attention to detail. After an "interesting" start at Lehigh, your amazing ability to balance academics, social activities, and athletics while clearly landing on top of all three is amazing. That unyielding perseverance was evident from your very first step. We cherish everything you do and will always be a few steps behind watching you soar to what others might consider unattainable heights.
YOU ARE A WINNER!
Love, Mom and Dad

My dearest doodle!

I cannot even begin to tell you how proud I am of you and yet how difficult it is to wrap my mind around the fact that you are graduating from college! But then I think of all you have done; the people you have met; the causes you have tirelessly worked and fought for, and I can't believe you've done all of it in a mere four years. Some people fulfill the most basic requirements of being a college student; you surpassed expectations and tested your own limits and those of others. Some people simply study abroad; you lived and experienced everyday, everything, and everyone. Some people are apathetic to social injustices; you refuse to be anything less than passionate about them. And so, wherever you end up, whatever you do next year and in the years to follow is going to be extraordinary because you "get" it. You live every moment and have an insane ability to inspire others to do the same. To my sister, my best friend, my role model -- I love you, to the moon and back.

Congratulations!

Always,
Em

The roots of education are bitter, but the fruit is sweet. So as you graduate today, don't forget why you came here. Your degree and your dreams are your ticket to change the world. We hope your dreams take you "to the corners of your smiles, to the highest of your hopes, to the windows of your opportunities, and to the most special places your heart has ever known" (Carson Wrenn). When planning your career, please bear in mind two important pieces of advice. Choose to do something you love and you will never work a day in your life; and most importantly, become a man of value not just a successful man.

Remember, too, we will always be here for you.

Where the Lehigh's rocky rapids
Rush from out the West,
Mid a grove of spreading chestnuts
Walls in ivy dressed.
On the breast of old South Mountain
Reared against the sky,
Stands our noble Alma Mater,
Stands our dear Lehigh.

Like a watchman on the mountain
Stands she grandly bold,
Earth's and Heaven's secrets seeking,
Hoarding them like gold.
All she wrests from Nature's storehouse
Naught escapes her eye,
Gives she gladly to her dear ones,
While we bless Lehigh.

We will ever live to love her,
Live to praise her name,
Live to make our lives add luster
To her glorious fame.
Let the glad notes wake the echo,
Joyfully we cry:
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater;
Hail, all hail, Lehigh.

Volume 133 of the Epitome yearbook was produced at Lehigh University, 33 Coppee Drive, Bethlehem, PA 18015. It was printed by Taylor Publishing of Dallas, Texas: 1550 W. Mockingbird Lane, Dallas, TX 75235. Ed Patrick served as local sales representative. Ann Harris served as the computer program technician. Pam Ringold served as the account executive. The 2009 yearbook sold for $75.00. Pennsylvania residents were charged an additional 6% for sales tax. The book consists of 328 pages and the total press run was 1,100 books.

Cover: The cover is 160 point Binders board, Thermoscreened black application brown leatherette, 331P material. The photo was taken by Douglas Benedict and supplied by Lehigh University Relations. The cover was designed by Stephen Williams, but the photo and color was decided upon by the editorial board.

Endsheets: The endsheets use process color and are printed on 80Lb rainbow sand endsheet stock.

Typography: The fonts utilized throughout the book vary by section and primarily consist of:

BernComp

Eric

Gourmand

JeffersonScript

Maximo

Color: The first 99 pages of the book use process color, as do pages 284 through 317 and pages 324 through 326.

Paper stock: The entire 330 pages of this book are printed on #100 matte paper.

Design: Templates for each section were created by Trevor Drummond with ideas from the entire editorial board. Section editors and staff members completed the layouts by selecting photos, editing them, soliciting information, and writing copy and captions. All pages were completed and published using StudioWorks, an online program offered through Taylor Publishing.

Photography: Professional photography services were provided for the Epitome by DaVor Photography, a division of Herff-Jones: Box 8507, 654 Street Road, Bensalem, PA 19020-8507. The local sales representative was Mark Huff. DaVor handled senior portraits. Uncredited photographs in the Opening section, Features section, and Athletics section were taken by DaVor. Uncredited photographs in the Greek section and Organization section were submitted by their respective organization represented on the page. All other photos were taken by the Epitome photography staff using digital cameras and are so credited.

Finance and Operation: The Epitome is an entirely student run publication and does not receive funding from the university. Each fraternity and sorority paid a fee for space in the book. The Lehigh University Student Senate paid for each organization to have a half page, and organizations could purchase additional space with their own funds. Other funds were generated from book sales, senior portrait sitting fees, parent advertisements and generous donations from parents, families and friends of the university.

The Epitome 2009

The production of this yearbook began over a year ago in New Orleans. During this trip, we attended numerous workshops and were able to receive valuable advice from previous Editor in Chief, Erica Vaccari.

Three major changes occurred to the book this year. First, we decided that we did not want the book to have an official theme. Instead this book focuses on the traditions of Lehigh University. Second, we changed over to a web-based program to put the book together. Third, we realized that a bigger book isn't always better.

We would like to thank Ed Patrick with Taylor Publishing for always being around when needed. Additionally we would like to thank Mark Huff and everyone at DaVor Photography for capturing this year in photographs.

Also, this book could not have been completed without the assistance of Natasha Burns, Christopher Knight and Robert Antes.

Our heartfelt thanks go out to Linda Lipko and Diane Dymek for their unwavering support with our decisions. Their years of yearbook experience have guided us to be able to produce this edition of the Epitome.

We would like to thank Managing Editor Erin Podolak for her help and for keeping us in line over the past four years. This book could not have been completed without the creative assistance of Associate Editor Trevor Drummond.

Additionally, we want to thank the section editors and staff members for their countless hours of volunteer work that they put into the production.

This book has been our project for over a year and we hope that you enjoy going through it as much as we do.
